MORE POLITICAL FIREWORKS ARE PREDICTED

DEMOCRATS MARSHAL FORCES FOR FIGHT ON APPROPRIATIONS

It is Thought That Several Republicans Will Line up With Them in the Fight—Payroll Investigation Committee Also is the Center of Interest—Road Bill Also Up

(By The Associated Press)
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 19.—More political fireworks are predicted in the house of representatives for the coming week, when the omnibus appropriation bill, carrying $16,270,267.33 and $2,617,280.09 in reappropriations is taken up on second reading. Democrats are marshalling figures and statistics in preparation for an onslaught on the bill, and other information is that several Republicans will join them in a plea for economy.

Consideration of the omnibus bill was postponed on Wednesday until Tuesday but the Galloway amendment resolution has been made a special order for Tuesday and therefore it lacks precedence. So much debate over the resolution is expected that it may require both morning and afternoon sessions Tuesday before it is "voted up or voted down." In that case the omnibus bill would be delayed until Wednesday.

Democrats hope to slice two million dollars from the big appropriation bill, but they are not sanguine of success. They expect Republicans of all factions to line up in support of the bill, although they say they are assured of a few Republican votes.

PRIME MINISTER'S CONDITION CAUSES FRIENDS CONCERN

Premier was Exhausted on Arrival in London Yesterday

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, May 19.—Great secrecy is being maintained regarding Prime Minister Bonar Law's condition which is causing his friends grave concern.

The premier, who recently left on an announced voyage of one month for his health, looked tired and worn out when he reached London this afternoon from Paris, and was compelled to rest because of his exhausted condition when he reached the private house where he is staying. Sir Thomas Horder, the noted specialist, was called upon the premier's arrival and remained with him a long time.

It was remarked that the premier was so fatigued when he alighted from his train that he failed to respond to the cheers of the crowd that had gathered to receive him.

At Sir Thomas Horder's residence it was stated that no information in regard to the premier's health will be given out for the present, but it is learned that absolute rest and freedom from political strain have been ordered and that during the next few days Bonar Law will be unable to meet his cabinet members.

HERRICK PRESENTED GOOD WILL DELEGATES

(By The Associated Press)
PARIS, France, May 19.—The American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, presented the American good-will delegates to President and Madame Millerand at Elysee Palace. The principal part of the ceremony was the presentation of a mahogany box containing a golden key to a gift to President Millerand from the city of Boston.

The president declared that only the soul of a poet could express France's gratitude for the work done by the American committee for devastated France.

Mrs. A. M. Dike, president of the committee and Mrs. Ann Moran, vice president, were with the delegation.

Mrs. Gibson alleged that her husband was unduly friendly with other women while living in Carthage, Ill. Gibson waived all rights to property valued at $50,000.

DANGER SEEN BY LOWDEN IN CARE OF DEPENDENTS

Must Stop Constant Increase Says Former Governor

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—Declaring the care of dependents consumes more than a quarter of the revenues of the average state, former Governor Lowden of Illinois, said tonight at the national conference of social workers that some way must be found to stop the constant increase of dependents in proportion to population.

Employment of social experts and establishment of research institutes Mr. Lowden said, prove profitable investments for the states even if they achieve only slight results.

He expressed the opinion however, that in the selection of social workers for this field the results could be satisfactory only with "genuine co-operation between the civil service authorities and those responsible for administration" because civil service commissions generally have not "concerned themselves with efficiency" so much as blocking "entrance into the service for purely political reasons."

RAIL OFFICIALS TESTIFY BEFORE I. C. COMMISSION

Say Rates Now in Effect Are Not Discriminatory

(By The Associated Press)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 19.—If rates are lowered on transportation of coal from southwestern mines to the Missouri river markets in accordance with a complaint filed by the southwestern coal operators, the Wabash railroad will lower its rates to those places from the Illinois fields, T. R. Farrell of St. Louis, assistant general freight agent of the Wabash testified in an interstate commerce commission hearing here today.

"Illinois," Farrell said "has not made any inroads on the Kansas market as contended by the complainants."

Mr. Farrell stated that to reduce the coal transportation rates from Illinois to the Missouri river cities would disturb the whole structure in the east but held that a reduction of southwestern rates would make this necessary.

"Rates from Southern Illinois fields to the Missouri river cities are not discriminatory," R. P. Camp Chicago, assistant coal traffic superintendent of the Illinois Central Railroad testified.

RADIOS TO BROADCAST SONGS AND JAZZ MUSIC

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 19.—An arrangement between broadcasting radio stations and the independent music publishers whereby popular songs and jazz music will be available was announced by Frederic Smith, secretary of the National Broadcaster's League, today. The supply of music will be available beginning next Wednesday when popular songs will appear on radio programs.

For several weeks copyrighted songs have been absent from radio programs taken off after the demand of the American society of composers, authors and publishers that license fees be paid for the use of copyrighted songs.

Secretary Smith said the new arrangement brings a return of popular songs to league members in 20 states.

C., May 19.—For the first time since its organization in 1853, the general synod of the Reformed Church in the United States will meet south of the Mason and Dixon line when it convenes here next Wednesday in triennial session. Camden, S. C., May 19.—Gratitude of Camden for the many offers of assistance received following the Cleveland fire which took 75 lives near here Thursday night was expressed tonight by Mayor H. G. Garrison, Jr., in a message which he asked the Associated Press to give the widest distribution.

Five Nearly Carried Over Niagara Falls

(By The Associated Press)
NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 19.—Only a mudbank saved a party of five from Chicago from being carried over Niagara Falls in a motorboat this evening. The motorboat, the Sunbeam, is owned by the Lasker Iron company of Chicago. It was formerly a sub-chaser and was bought in New York recently, refitted and brought up the large canal to Tonawanda. Captain George Murphy of Chicago was in command.

This evening the captain decided to make another lap to Buffalo and spend the night there. The motorboat was taken into the river and the pilot, being unfamiliar with the channel, proceeded north along the Canadian shore in the direction of the falls.

At Chippewa workmen on the hydroplant piers waved a warning to the crew but they interpreted the signal as a friendly hail and continued their course. Just below the intake for the Queenstown power house channel a broad mud bank stretches several hundred feet out into the river.

The motorboat stuck her sharp nose into this mud and held fast, a scant half mile from the cataract.

A motorboat was rushed out from Chippewa and the crew of the Sunbeam taken ashore. A line was attached to the Sunbeam to prevent her drifting away.

ADVERSE REPORTS RESULT IN BULGE IN CORN MARKET

Advance in Corn Also Lifts the Price of Wheat

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 19.—With receipts of corn here so scanty as to be almost at the vanishing point and complaints current that much of the new crop is rotting in the ground, the corn market has shown a notable bulge in price this week and has to a considerable extent been effective in lifting the value of wheat. Compared with a week ago wheat this morning was $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ higher, corn 1¢ to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ up, oats $\frac{3}{4}$ ¢ to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ up and provisions at 35¢ to 37¢ to 47¢ advance.

The infrequent spectacle of corn proving the leader in the grain markets was preceded this week by a decrease of 3,760,000 bushels in the United States visible surplus of corn and by indications that the stock of corn in Chicago would dwindle rapidly from this time on as a result of lake vessel shipments on a liberal scale. Arrivals of corn here meanwhile have been only a few carloads a day, the small amount on record, high prices paid by rural feeders being too tempting a counter attraction. Toward the end of the week, however, forecasts of a warm wave helped to ease the corn market somewhat inasmuch as cold rainy weather has been largely responsible for fears regarding the new corn crop and for increasing the demand from feeders.

Numerous unfavorable reports as to the condition of winter wheat had much to do with high prices for wheat. Assertions that spring wheat acreage had been sharply reduced as compared with last year counted also as a bullish factor. Besides, primary receipts of wheat have been greatly curtailed of late and export demand appeared to be improving for wheat at the Gulf of Mexico.

Oats were depressed by favorable weather for the oats crop. Provisions went higher with corn and on account of the bullish showing of the semi-monthly report on stocks of land here.

BIG DAVE ERSMAN IS STILL IN JAIL

(By The Associated Press)
WAUKESHA, Ill., May 19.—David "Big Dave" Ersman, who has been under arrest in connection with the grand jury investigation during the trial and sentencing of Governor Small, was still in jail although attempts were being made to secure his release.

Ersman was arrested secretly in Chicago two weeks ago by attaches of the state's attorney's office on a warrant charging conspiracy to impede justice.

The release on bonds was made after habeas corpus proceedings had failed.

AUBERE'S DEATH UNAVOIDABLE IS VERDICT OF JURY

Exonerates Car Driver in Death of Northwestern Student

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 19.—While the state's attorneys office continued today to investigate the disappearance of one Northwestern University student, a coroner's jury decided that the death of Louis Aubere, freshman, killed April 27 when an automobile loaded with students crashed into another machine was the result of an unavoidable accident.

Little progress was made in the investigation of the disappearance following a class fight twenty months ago of Leighton Mount, also a freshman. A skeleton believed by the authorities to be his was found a week after Aubere was killed under a pier at Evanston.

It was believed tonight that the coroner's jury verdict will result in the withdrawal of a manslaughter charge against James Leahy, student driver of the automobile in which Aubere was riding when he was killed. Leahy was booked on the charge by the Wilmette police and is at liberty under bonds of $5,000.

Roscoe Conkling Fitch, a student who was questioned at length regarding the Mount case, and who made conflicting statements concerning his knowledge of it, had testified that the accident in which Aubere was killed and another student seriously injured was perpetrated intentionally by students.

Other students who occupied the student cars refuted his testimony.

J. Allen Mills of Akron, Ohio, a former student who has been before the grand jury investigating Mount's disappearance in a telegram to Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, asserted that he believed Charles "Chuck" Palmer, star athlete, knew nothing about the case. Palmer was taken into custody and later free after a former woman friend had reported that he told her a short time after Mount disappeared that he knew where the missing student was.

Assistant state's attorneys today practically abandoned another theory after questioning two brothers of Miss Doris Fuchs, girl friend of Mount's, in the belief that Mount's relations with the girl might have caused her brothers to take action. Both denied that they knew Mount and said that they had been in Evanston, but once when they passed through in an automobile.

FIFTEEN FOREIGNERS IN BANDITS' HANDS ARE FACING DEATH

Unless Brigands Are Satisfied by Next Tuesday Two Americans and Two Britishers Have But 48 Hours to Live—Meanwhile Chinese Officials are Wrangling

(By The Associated Press)
PEKING, May 19.—Fifteen foreigners, six of them Americans, some of them ill, all of them weary, bruised, and foot-sore, poorly fed and worse clad, tonight are looking death in the face in the Paozuku hills of Shantung province as they approach the end of their second week as captives of the bandits who raided the Shanghai-Peking express near Suchow, May 6.

If the foreign and Chinese governments are unable to satisfy the brigands by Tuesday that their terms for the release of the prisoners will be met and the robbers' chief-tain makes good his threat, two Americans and two Britishers have but little more than forty-eight hours to live.

They will be shot as a warning that the marauders mean to force compliance with their demands under their chief's ultimatum sent out Saturday.

"We are pleading for our lives, and unless Peking, Washington and London realize that the bandits are ready to sacrifice their own lives and those of all their captives in their fight for reinstatement in the Chinese government, and immunity from punishment, we are surely doomed," is the statement made by Leon Friedman, one of the Americans, speaking for all.

Friedman's message, sent to his brother in Shanghai, has stirred the foreign communities of China. In Shanghai tomorrow a mass meeting will be held to pass resolutions demanding the American and British governments guarantee the promises of the Chinese government to the outlaws and win the freedom of their imprisoned nationals.

The shadow of death has descended seven times this week on the bandit prison corrals in the Paozuku hills. Two of the Chinese prisoners were thrown from the cliffs because their promised ransoms had not been paid and five others were shot down in cold blood for failure to obey orders.

One man, Marcel O. Berube, a Frenchman of Shanghai, yesterday was given his freedom with instructions from Wang, the bespectacled young bandit leader, to go to Peking and lay before the Chinese government and the foreign diplomatic corps the desperate plight of the foreigners.

Berube tomorrow will tell his story and present the ultimatum of the outlaws to the diplomats, including Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, American minister, who has returned to the capital from a trip to Shanghai and the bandit zone.

Two factors apparently have clogged negotiations for the release of the captives. One is the dicker between Chinese officials at Tsoochang who have poured in there by the carload to treat for the prisoners release. The other is the bandits' demand that because they cannot trust the promises of the Chinese government guarantee that their terms will be met must be given from some responsible source. Opposed to this latter position is the stand of the foreign diplomats that the Chinese government is held responsible for the safety of the prisoners and it must obtain their freedom.

Both Friedman and Berube say that unless the captives are released soon they are doomed.

Troops Threaten Mutiny. Advances from Tsoochang state that mutiny is feared among the troops policing the bandit zone. They have not been paid for 13 months and are reported to be fraternizing with the outlaws, even to the extent of selling the brigands the government ammunition they carry.

Some of the soldiers, however, still are said to be encircling the brigand fortress despite repeated assertions from Chinese officials that they have not been paid for 13 months and are reported to be fraternizing with the outlaws, even to the extent of selling the brigands the government ammunition they carry.

The diplomatic corps, headed by its dean, J. B. DeFreitas, the Portuguese minister, twice has called on the Chinese government to speed up negotiations for release of the fifteen foreigners held in the prisons of Paozuku. The last time representations were made the government was informed that the diplomats were "awaiting with impatience" action by the Peking regime.

On his way from Shanghai to Peking, American minister Schurman stopped off at Tsoochang long enough to tell the Chinese officials there to get results and get them quickly or "drastic action" will be taken.

"Get the prisoners out and talk terms afterwards" was the key-note of Dr. Schurman's demand.

The resolution attacking Chief Justice Taft was adopted unanimously but none of the delegates expressed views on the subject.

PRESBYTERIANS OPPOSE SUNDAY MOVING PICTURES

Demand That They Clean and Clear Out on Lord's Day

(By The Associated Press)
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 19.—Presbyterians of the United States of America today received a report from the committee on Sabbath observance demanding that the movies "clean up and clear out of the Lord's day."

Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, who is attending the assembly as an elder of the church, was absent from the hall when Dr. Harry L. Bowlby, president of the Lord's Day Alliance, attacked the Sunday movie shows.

A resolution on motion picture censorship and Sunday movie shows is prepared to be presented to the assembly for action.

The controversy between the ultraconservative and progressive factions was quiet today, due to the absence of William Jennings Bryan, leader of the fundamentalists.

The commissioners are anxiously waiting the first open move in the fight between fundamentalists and liberals, which may come Monday morning, if the committee on bills and overtures reports the Fosdick case then. It is certain to break Tuesday when the special committee on the Olegare seminars presents its report of a years investigation of the schools for the training of ministers.

Mr. Bryan is understood to have ready for presentation a resolution which would bar the teaching of evolution in the church schools and would expel professors who hold the evolutionary hypothesis of the origin of human life on the earth.

SOCIALISTS WOULD IMPEACH W. H. TAFT

NEW YORK, May 19.—A demand for the impeachment of William H. Taft, chief justice of the United States for accepting an alleged annuity of $10,000 from the Carnegie Corporation and an attack on the Lenin and Trotsky branch of Russian communism by Alexander Cahan, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, featured the opening of the national convention of the socialist party today. Mr. Cahan declared in an address that Trotsky was a "big bombastic windbag" but declared he was sincere, and that Lenin's physical breakdown was due, in great part to his moral incapacity.

The resolution attacking Chief Justice Taft was adopted unanimously but none of the delegates expressed views on the subject.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of materials sent to American firms in Russia have been seized by the officials there. It remains to be seen what the American government can do about it, unless it wishes to go to war against the motley millions of Russia, now so badly ruled and so unfortunately led.

A better homes campaign is scheduled for the first week in June by the national council for better homes in America. It will be a very successful event if those behind it are able to tell how homes of any kind can be erected at a reasonable cost.

TAXES IN OTHER CITIES.

(From Galesburg Mail.)
A nearby city paper contains an article averring that the city must raise its tax rate. That is a common practice. When a city actually lowers its tax rate it becomes a matter of news.

A paper published down the state asserts that members of the legislature are getting letters from their constituents protesting against the raise in taxation. It is alleged that bills passed and pending increase taxes in a number of directions. It feels that it is time for the legislature to call a halt.

On the other hand as announced in the Republican-Register last night the present municipal rate has been continued another three years by the bill just signed by the governor.

This comes as salivation to the cities of the state for if the rate of several years ago had been restored it would have left the cities in a state of bankruptcy.

THE MODEL VILLAGE.

In an article in the New York World, Clare Sheridan paints a fascinating picture of a village she saw outside of Essen, built for workmen. It was a village of beautiful cottages with beautiful yards and gardens, and apparently with quiet, happy people in them. She says:

"No one needs more than just such a home as each one had in that model village. One should not have to be rich in order to have beauty and harmony of environment. Harmony should be within the reach of all who need it and appreciate it. Beauty should be the environment of even those who are not conscious of it. Because beauty and harmony are elevating and enable the worker to think his best and therefore do his best. The Krupp model village represented just a tiny fraction of the millennium come to earth. The little hemmed-in world of Margaretshoehe was just a pattern of what the world should be."

If all people lived in such homes, she thinks, "all the men and women would love, and none of the babies would cry, and all the soldiers would be creative workers. There would be no prisons, no lunatic asylums, flowers would bloom in all the gardens of employer and worker alike and roses in June would have no class consciousness."

Maybe so. But the writer seems to overlook certain facts pretty obvious to other people. The people living in those lovely cottages are mostly socialists, or at least call themselves so. They work in the Krupp factories, and they made the shells and guns which killed so many millions of Germany's neighbors, and they upheld the statesmen who ordered the killing and the soldiers who did it.

Evidently beautiful and comfortable homes, important as they are, will not cure all human ills.

WITCH DOCTORS.

(NEA)

In southern Rhodesia, Africa, where they have summer while we have winter, the natives recently called in a witch doctor to make it rain. The whole country was parched and withered as the result of a long drought.

The witch doctor, of course, announced that a human sacrifice must be made to the rain god, Mwari.

No one was very ambitious to be the victim, so the primitive city council turned their eyes to a worthless neighbor named Mtegedi.

He was notorious for his amours with his neighbors' wives, and the tribesmen gladly seized on the opportunity to get him out of the way.

Well, they tied him to a stake and burned him alive. Millions have perished similarly in the black history of superstitious humanity.

By coincidence, the victim had been dead only a few minutes when a terrific storm blew along. Rain fell for days, torrents of it.

Coincidence, you know, is the ally of superstition.

If you have been following the scientific news, you know that Americans have been experimenting to produce artificial rain. The most promising method is an airplane scattering electrified sand

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

THE DUD

By Berton Braley

HE was dull and he was stolid
And his head with bone was solid.
Or at any rate that's how he looked to us.
He seemed say of information
Or of any conversation
On the topics we had chosen to discuss.
He looked stupid, heavy-headed,
And we thought his brain imbedded
In the ivory and granite of his knob;
Yes, he seemed a hopeless dud in Every way, till of a sudden
Someone got this bird to talking of his job.

THEN his face with glamor lighted,
And his eyes grew keen, excited,
As he spoke of things he understood so well;
We, who thought we could ignore him,
Sat quite breathlessly before him
While his conversation help us in a spell.
Thus we learned this little lesson,
Which we'd lay a lot of stress on,
"Don't misjudge a guy who seems to be a gawk;
You may find, as quite a few have,
He has better brains than you have,
When the man who knows his job begins to talk!"

(Copyright, 1923, NEA Service, Inc.)

on a "roof of clouds." The theory is that a particle of moisture, suspended in the air, tends to attract other particles—condense into raindrops—when electrified. The experimenters claim their first results are encouraging. Prof. Wilder D. Bancroft, of Cornell University, expects better results with sand charged to 30,000 volts or over.

Marconi some months ago predicted that "rain will come and go at your will in the future." Then we will become lords and masters of creation on this planet. We will then be able to obtain any amount of power without effort.

The distance between the human sacrifice to the African rain god and the scientists seeking to make artificial rain in our country is a matter of millions of years of brain development.

The contrast emphasizes how man in the primitive state seeks the solution of his problems outside himself, and how in the civilized state he realizes that the solution comes from within.

In other words, we have to work for everything we get on earth, and progress either individually or socially is "up to us," ourselves.

We still seek alibis and blame our troubles on external (often invisible) influences. But we're gradually learning that the way to get out of a hole is to climb out "with our own hands and legs."

Man's fate is in his own hands, with a Divine Being ready to help us as we help ourselves.

STUDENTS COMPLETE ENDOWMENT QUOTA

The $200,000 mark for the students and faculty of Illinois Woman's college in their campaign for endowment was passed Saturday morning amid wild enthusiasm. Following the chapel service, the students paraded the streets in cars and on foot, cheering and singing. Classes were dismissed for the day.

The $200,000 required of the students and faculty has been raised with a 100 per cent subscription list. The campaign carried the subscriptions $217.71 beyond the required amount.

T. P. A. BOOKLET TELLS ABOUT CITY

Souvenir Publication of Traveling Mens Organization Gives Jacksonville Good Writeup.

At the recent convention of the Travelers Protective Association held in Peoria a souvenir booklet was issued giving some very interesting facts about the state organization and every post in the state. The booklet is one of about 75 pages, done in fine typographical style and handsomely illustrated.

A page report of Post O. of this city is given by C. F. Ehnie, who has long served acceptably as secretary of the organization. The write-up makes only brief mention of Post O. but is devoted to Jacksonville as a whole, individual mention being made of the various schools and colleges, the different manufacturing and wholesale concerns.

Facts are also given about the railroad facilities, the city parks, the chamber of commerce, the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and other organizations. Along with the article is a reproduction of a T. P. A. window display which Mr. Ehnie arranged in connection with a newspaper article advertising the T. P. A. His production won the first prize offered by the national office.

The Jacksonville write-up is well done and appearing as it does in the handsome booklet constitutes a fine bit of publicity for the city.

COLLEGE OF MUSIC NOTES

The next recital in the College of Music will be given by the certificate students of the Public School's conservatory course. The program will comprise violin, vocal, piano and organ numbers. The public is invited to attend.

Thursday evening, May 24th, Friday evening and Saturday afternoon will be devoted to the younger pupils of the College of Music. The programs will be divided as equally as possible, one class demonstration being held on each occasion. The children will play short compositions of their own besides their regular solos, as melody writing has been one of the leading features of the year's work and has proved very popular with the young folk. Over ninety children will be heard in all.

Grace Styles, former music student, has been visiting at the college for the past few days.

One of the numbers on Suzanne Ringhart's recent program, was a song with violin obligato, composed by herself, entitled, "That Not What Seems Lovely" and sung by Fredericka Balch.

Several advanced pupils of the piano, vocal and violin departments provided music for Fred High's community lectures in nearby towns last week. These students included Marie Luke, Mary Lois Clark, Christine Cotner and Gwendolynne Schroyer.

The last issue of Musical America contained an interesting account of the inauguration of the new head quarters in New York City, where Miss Sapio and Miss Hornbrugh will give a joint program on June 15.

Director Pearson has the pleasure of announcing that all members of the music faculty will return next fall to resume their work in the College of Music. About fifty faculty and students, attended the Gull-Gull concert in Springfield on Friday evening.

PLAN TO DEDICATE CHURCH IN AUGUST

The new Salem Lutheran church is now under roof and ready for the plasterers. The plastering will be started next week. Contractors are pushing the work of construction, which is proceeding satisfactorily.

It is hoped to have the building ready for dedication by the last of August. Further arrangements as to decorations and the purchase of new organ are yet to be made; but these will be completed and the organ installed within the time set.

BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT PRESENTED AT I. W. C.

Spring Festival Program Saturday Afternoon Included Pageant and Crowning of May Queen—Large Number Witnessed Presentation

"Persephone's Return," a beautiful pageant portraying the old Greek legend of the coming of the spring, was presented at Illinois Woman's college at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon as the principal feature of the annual May day fete.

The college campus furnished an ideal setting for such a production and the day was all that could be desired from a weather standpoint. The fete had been postponed several times because of unfavorable weather, but the girls who took part in it had lost none of their interest because of this fact.

It seemed a glorious finale to a perfect day—the day when the students themselves went over the top—one hundred per cent in their student endowment quota. Early in the afternoon a procession of students led by a motor drawn chariot and rider, heralded the event thru the principal streets of the city, so an unusually large crowd was present.

The pageant opened with the entrance of the May Queen, heralded by her numerous children attendants, and attended by her Maid of Honor, Miss Catherine Yanseck.

Miss Eloise Calhoun as the May Queen, was one of the most beautiful May queens the college has had in years. Attired in a long, clinging satin gown, wearing silver slippers and carrying a huge shower bouquet of roses and bridal wreath, she was indeed a charming figure.

Miss Yanseck also deserves special mention as Maid of Honor, as does Miss Hildreth Ashwood as Queen Dowager. The following students served as court ladies: Mae Larimore, Paulina Tull, Mary Hall, Eleanor Jane Dinsmore, Suzanne Rinehart, Helena Betcher, Ada Foster and Eva Gertrude Hodgins.

The queen took her seat on an artistically decorated throne prepared for her and the festival began with the breaking of dawn, with Miss Charlotte Rodgers interpreting the spirit of dawn. This solo dance was one of the most charming in the entire pageant.

Miss Beatrice Hasenstah as Demeter was very pleasing throughout the fete, and Miss Mayza Hall as Persephone, Demeter's daughter, was equally graceful and appealing. The dance of Hermes by Audrey King was especially beautiful and Mildred Brown as Pan entirely captivated her audience.

Even the mournful dance of Despair by Lucille Vick, though cleverly interpreted, could not dispel the joy which the audience felt as the festival progressed.

And then came the crowning of the May Queen. She descended from her throne and was met by the Queen Dowager, Mrs. Mark Hunt, herself a former May queen, who crowned the new queen, Miss Calhoun is president of the senior class, vice president of the students' association and a member of the Phi Nu society.

The pageant, "Persephone's Return" was arranged by Miss Margaret Hamilton of the class of '22 and at present assistant director of physical education at the college. It was staged and directed by Miss Nellie E. Boyd, director of Physical Education, assisted by Miss Mary Jewell, student assistant; Elizabeth Braybeal and Margaret Hamilton, assistant directors.

WAYNE GARD WRITES FROM THE HIMALAYAS

Jacksonville Young Man Tells in Most Interesting Vein of Trip Over Famous Bhamo-Namhkan Road—Lost in Mountains Overnight—A Meal of Monkey Meat.

Writing from Burma where he has for some time past been instructor in English in Cushing high school at Rangoon, Wayne Gard tells of his unusual experiences on his expedition across the Himalayas, Mr. Gard writes with graphic and fluent pen.

You would have some difficulty in locating me on a map just now, for I am up in the Himalayas on the China frontier. Namhkan, the place where I am staying for three weeks, is only a few miles from the point at which, thirteen months ago, several hundred Chinese bandits crossed the line and made a plundering raid in Burmese territory. I crossed a little corner of China in coming here, and am planning to visit a Chinese bazaar before returning.

This letter will have to be carried on a man's head for three days—sixty miles—and on an Irwaddy river boat for one day before reaching a railway line. Even then, it will still be two days from Rangoon.

The Bhamo-Namhkan road over which I came, is one of the chief routes for overland trade between Burma and China. At its highest point it is a mile above sea level. The caravans to be seen along this road are as variegated and as picturesque as any in the world. Mostly they consist of shaggy Chinese mules, loaded with such commodities as hides or oil, and driven by blue-coated Chinese muleteers. Usually the mules wear bells which warn of their approach and lessen the danger of their becoming lost. In some of the caravans, however, bullocks are the beasts of burden. And occasionally one has to get out of the way to let an elephant go by.

The foot travelers are even more interesting. Only colored pictures could convey an adequate description of them. Chinese, Shans and Kachins are in the majority, but there are also Palangs and a few Burmans, Indians and others, in their various costumes. The women in this part of the world live up to their reputation in having "substantial and evident charms." Often one sees a mother carrying a baby in a sling and nursing him as she walks. The baby doesn't seem to mind the jolting, for he never loses his grip.

Parrots and Apes Make Din

Along this road one is entertained constantly by the chattering of green parrots and frequently by the shouting of apes. Tigers and leopards still abound, but have become rather wary of human beings. I passed one place on the road where once a tiger attacked one of the ponies of an American missionary and had gone far toward making a meal of him before he could be driven off. The pony attacked while the missionary was riding. The incident occurred at night, during a blinding rain.

On our second morning out of Bhamo, a Shan boy and I became detached from the remainder of the party while taking a cross-cut, and discovered before noon that we were lost in the mountains. We met a few Kachins, but they could not direct us, on account of differences in language. We stopped at a Kachin village on a mountain where, mostly by sign language, we bought rice and eggs for ourselves and feed for our pony. These things cost us the equivalent of about thirteen cents.

After returning those eggs which floated, we proceeded to make a fire and cook the others with the rice. Fortunately, we were able to secure salt for the rice and eggs, which we ate with our fingers in true Burmese style. Without taking time for rest, we started off again, seeking to find our way back to the government road.

Kachins Like Indians

During the afternoon we passed through many Kachin villages, and could not help observing some of their habits. Of the present peoples of Burma, the Kachins were the last to enter the country. Their primitive life is similar in many respects to that of the American Indians of two centuries ago. Though they do not have the roving habits of the Red Men, they have the same love for hunting and for brilliant colors, and observe a similar spirit worship. The women work in the fields, and carry their babies on their backs.

Most of the Kachins are animists. Outside the villages may be seen shrines where gifts of fruit and liquor are placed to ward off evil spirits. Kachin villages always are on the mountain-tops, though the fields tilled by the people may be two thousand feet below. The Kachins had no written language until they were given one by American missionaries. In this, Roman letters are used.

In the evening of this day we seemed no nearer the road than we had been at noon. We feared that we would have to sleep on the ground, and supperless. We discovered some wild lemon trees with fruit almost as big as pineapples, but these lemons were so sour we hardly could eat them. I fished through my pockets but could find nothing edible except a bottle of quinine pills. I took one of these, but it didn't help much. Later we found a few yellow raspberries.

Before dark we came across some Kachins who took us to their village and sold us more rice and eggs. They could talk with us, as there was a Christian teacher in the village who understood Burmese. We were informed that we were twelve miles off the government road. The villagers gave us a small bamboo hut to sleep in, and the head-man donated a few blankets for our comfort.

Back to the Road

Long before dawn we were off again, with a Kachin boy to guide us back to the road. We went up and down over numerous high ridges and were able to reach the road about the middle of the morning. We soon discovered that we were twenty-two miles past where we had left the road, and that our party was ahead of us. After paying and dismissing the Kachin boy, we hurried on and overtook the others at about noon. Short-cuts were carefully avoided during the remainder of the trip.

Namhkan is a good place for the cultivation of laziness. I sleep in a tent and have nothing to do except what I want to do. For two days last week we feasted on fresh venison. We have raspberries nearly every day, and strawberries occasionally. The Namhkan bazaar is held every fifth day, as is customary in the Shan states. Here are bought and sold the products of a wide territory. Although many peoples are represented among the sellers, the Shans are in the majority. These people live in the plains and are, as a consequence, more civilized than the hill tribes who are their neighbors. They are allowed a more independent life than are the Burmans. Racially, the Shans are the same as the Siamese.

Monkey Meat Is Fine

Yesterday morning when I heard that a Karen neighbor had killed two monkeys I hurried over to see them. One, an adult male, seemed more like a gorilla, both in size and in facial expressions; he was nearly as big as I am. The other, a baby, was about the size of those in Nichols Park. I had a generous share of the meat

W. C. T. U. MET AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The Morgan County W. C. T. U. Institute, which was held Friday at the Baptist church, was one of the most pleasant, and effective that has been held for several years. The rain prevented several of the workers from coming from a distance. Mrs. Eva Hyde presided, Mrs. James Rice, recording secretary, and Mrs. Charlotte Gray, treasurer, at the table.

At the noon hour, the guests of honor were Miss Williams, public librarian, and Mrs. Sullivan, executive secretary of the Red Cross. After the luncheon, they each gave a most excellent account of the work that they are doing. Many questions were asked and answered.

It was voted to have a copy of "The Union Signal," the national organ of the W. C. T. U., become a weekly visitor at the library, and "The Young Crusader" sent to the children's department. Committees for the different plans for work were appointed. The county convention will be held in Jacksonville in September, but the date has not been definitely fixed.

All joined hands and sang, "All around the world the ribbon white is twined."

The Town That Forgot God

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday—Admission 20c Plus Tax, Children 10c No Tax

The story of a town where the ten commandments are broken every day and the golden rule every hour. It proves again that "the wages of sin is death." A scathing indictment of the wickedness of Man.

Street. A hotbed of infamy in the heart of America. How a Modern Sodom and Gomorrah was destroyed for its iniquities. Rome was purged by Fire—Babylon was destroyed by Vandals—This Infamous Town was destroyed by Flood and Fire. They knew neither Faith, Hope nor Charity—and were scourged for their sins.

What You Will See in "The Town That Forgot God"

The most sensational and spectacular storm and flood scene ever shown on the screen. A whole town wiped off the map by a terrific deluge. The most tense dramatic story of American small town life ever portrayed. Life in a small American town where the ten commandment are broken every day and the golden rule every hour. A man-made storm and flood that surpasses for thrills and sensations the greatest deluges in history. A dramatic story based on the love of a boy for his mother. A boy, still in his teens, who gives a dramatic characterization unsurpassed in the history of motion pictures. A story adapted from the real life experiences of its leading character. A motion picture that proves again truth is stranger than fiction.

Film flood that rivals historic deluges. Man-made torrent more sensational than real disaster. An entire city is swept away. Proof that cities are invariably swept away after a reign of infamy. Babylon, Rome, Sodom and Gomorrah might be called "Cities God Forgot"—but, this is the story of a typical American village where the ten commandments are broken daily.

A man-made flood that will at least rival and probably surpass the greatest deluge in history will be seen in "The Town That Forgot God."

A whole town, built especially for the purpose of being destroyed by the torrent, is washed away. Everything is swept before it, houses, barns, trees, inhabitants of the village and livestock of all kinds, not to mention a half dozen cameramen who were swept from their platforms while the scenes were being made.

No city in history was as completely demolished as "The Town That Forgot God." Even Johnstown, Pa., which was virtually destroyed by water on May 31, 1889, when a dam gave way, permitting the mass of water more than twenty feet in height to rush through the town, was not wrecked in as spectacular a fashion as this typical American village.

Even if motion pictures were available of all the great floods of history, including the Johnstown deluge, the more recent Dayton, O., catastrophe or the Galveston, Tex., disaster, it is doubtful if it would be any more thrilling or realistic.

When this picture played its opening engagement at the Astor Theatre in New York City the audience actually stood and applauded the thrilling climax formed by the terrific storm and flood scenes.

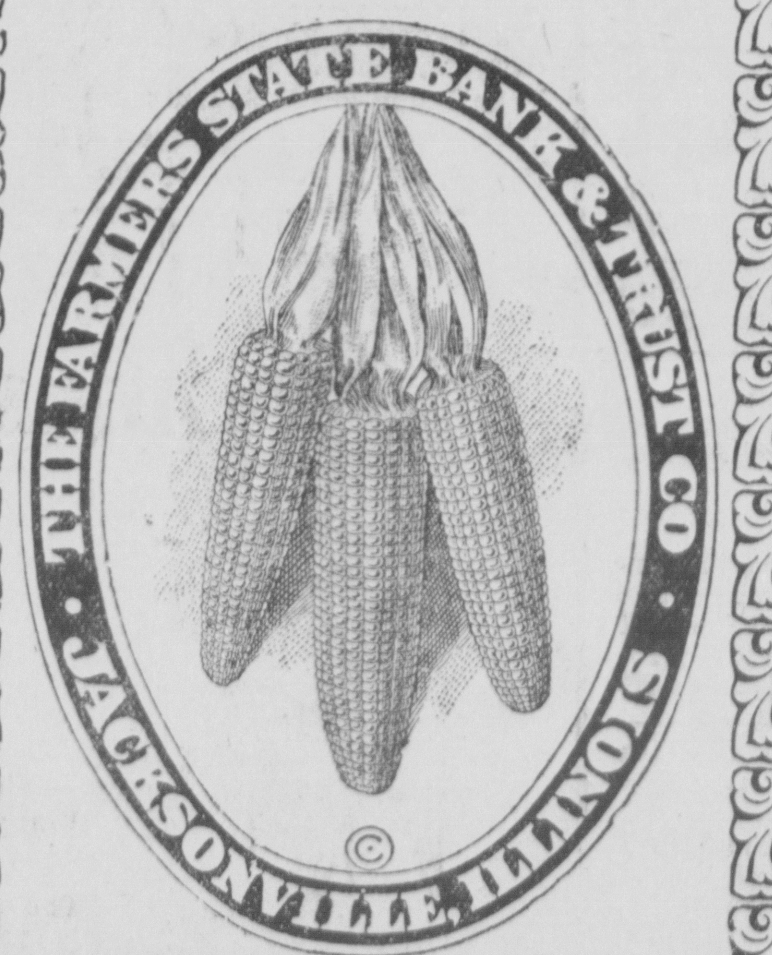

In addition to the torrent of water there is a terrific storm raging throughout the time the rushing waters are tearing the village to bits. This adds greatly to the realism and forms a scene that few people will believe is not the actual raging of the elements.

The village, which is destroyed by the storm and flood, was built in a valley across the Hudson River from New York City. Underneath the ground throughout the town a concrete base was laid to prevent the water from seeping into the ground before the scenes could be complete.

Nature's aids to Beauty

You have heard it said, perhaps, that beauty is one-quarter nature and three-quarters care. No truer statement was ever made.

True beauty does not reside in the features, but in the velvety softness and attractive coloring of a healthy skin, the glory of healthy hair becomingly dressed, and the universal charm of well-kept hands and nails.

Every woman is endowed by nature with these attractions or can acquire them through the regular practice of proper care and the employment of simple and reliable beauty aids. We will consider it a privilege to advise with any woman on such matters. And we absolutely guarantee the toilet requisites we recommend.

INDIANS KNEW SOMETHING OF WAR

(By The Associated Press)
SANTA BARBARA, Cal., May 19.—The Indians whose remains have been unearthed by the excavators on the Ambassador hotel site here by the representatives of the Smithsonian Institution may have been as peace-loving as scientists believe, but some of the relics found in the graves indicate that they were familiar with implements of war.

One of the objects found is an oblong stone four or five inches long and a little more than half that diameter. Around the middle of the stone is a shallow groove where a rawhide thong probably was attached. This stone, with its thong, made an effective weapon of offense and defense for Mr. Stone Hatcher. Some of the skulls found, which are of great age, have round holes in the top where the bones join. There seems no reasonable explanation for these holes.

An examination of the animal bones show that they must have been large and powerful. The prehistoric bear, the bones of which were found last night, in the opinion of J. P. Harrington, who is in charge of the excavation for the Smithsonian Institution, was an animal as large as the largest of our chinimons bears of today but much smaller than the grizzly.

"It is evident that the deeper graves we have found were much older than those first found," said Harrington. "The burial customs were different at the different periods. I have hoped that when we get to still lower levels we shall find evidence of a still older civilization."

The conference itself is struggling along groping for peace against numerous discouraging obstacles.

M. Tchitcherine in his note to the conference, raises the spectre of failure of the conference and declares that the soviet reserve all rights and will continue to address communications to the conference and to the French, British and Italian governments regarding Vorovsky, if necessary.

TURKEY WILL STAND BEHIND CONCESSIONS

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 19.—Turkey will stand behind the Chester oil and mineral concession in Angora, Arthur Chester, son of Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. N., retired, declared today when he arrived on the steamship France after almost a year spent on the ground recently acquired by the American syndicate headed by his father.

"Our concessions in the Angora," he said in reference to French protests to the grant, "will be based upon concessions of the parliament of Turkey, while the concessions of France never went further than ministerial recognition. The Turks insist that the only binding contract is the one that came from parliament. When the Turks enter into an agreement they stand by it. They will stand by the Chester concessions."

Mr. Chester said he would place all papers and negotiations between the company the Turkish authorities before the state department at Washington.

TEARNEY'S AUTO INN WILL BE CLOSED SOON

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 19.—Al Tearney's auto inn, heretofore an undisturbed spot in the city's south side cabaret district will be closed as the result of action taken today by Mayor Dever revoking the cabaret, retail beverage, restaurant and cigarette license.

Mayor Dever's action was taken on the recommendation of Chief of Police Morgan Collins, who submitted a three page report in which were prominently mentioned recent labor shootings in the cafe, several of which resulted fatally.

The report was made recently that the cabaret of Tearney, president of the Three and Western Baseball League, would be closed after Mayor Dever declared in a meeting at the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church that any cabaret on the south side violating the law would be closed.

He did not have in mind Tearney's inn at that time, Mayor Dever said, but immediately ordered Chief Collins to investigate and report. A woman investigator was sent last Thursday night and reported numerous violations of the law. Mayor Dever's action followed.

CLEAN-UP WORK TO BEGIN TOMORROW

City Health Officer Announces Systematic Sanitary Inspection Will Be Established in Business District.

Tomorrow a systematic sanitary inspection of the business district will begin, according to Dr. R. V. Brokaw, city health officer. Alleys and vacant lots and all premises will be inspected for the existence of nuisances of any description.

When nuisances are discovered the parties responsible will be notified and given a reasonable time to clean up. If the objectionable material is not removed within a reasonable time, prosecution will occur in accordance with the provisions of the ordinance.

Persons engaging in the business of hauling ashes or rubbish of any description must secure a license from the city clerk at the city hall. All those who are licensed to collect ashes and rubbish must display their name and license number on their wagons.

This will make it possible to detect the individuals who make a practice of secretly dumping off ashes and rubbish of every description on the public thoroughfares of the city and thereby creating a nuisance.

To all persons licensed to collect and dispose of ashes and rubbish a list of suitable dumping places is given and it is required that the waste material shall be disposed of in a manner satisfactory to the health officer at the places designated.

Many licenses have already been taken out and there is a disposition on the part of collectors to obey the regulations. Property owners who do not readily find a collector may phone in to the sanitary inspector at the health department, extension 1767, and secure the names of licensed collectors with whom they can make arrangements for the disposal of ashes or rubbish.

As soon as the inspection of the business district is completed the work will be extended into the residential districts of the various wards.

In commenting upon the situation, Dr. Brokaw said: "This is not a spasmodic clean-up campaign, but it is the beginning of a definite program designed to eliminate conditions which are objectionable and a menace to health. The work will be carried forward quietly, but firmly and persistently."

Oak Park High And White Hall Winners

Former Takes Class B and Latter Class A In State Meet Saturday

Greene County Team Surprises Rooters With Well Balanced Team—Goode Won Javelin—Williams and Smith Also Great Aid—Goodwillie Defeated Johnny Cameron

ILLINOIS FIELD, Urbana, Ill., May 19.—Oak Park and White Hall divided the class A and class B honors in the 29th annual Illinois interscholastic here this morning, the scores of the two winning teams being 24 2-3 for the former and 20 1/2 for the latter.

The Oak Park aggregation gathered victory without taking more than one first place. Royer copped the 120 yard high hurdle and took second place in the 220 yard hurdles event. The rest of the points were third and fourth.

Eugene Goodwillie surprised the large crowd of "prep" rooters when he defeated Johnny Cameron in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. In performing this feat he was forced to negotiate the century in 10 1-5 seconds and to equal the world's interscholastic record in the 220 yard dash. Because he took ten points and stepped the furlong in 21 2-5 seconds to the record, he was awarded the Ma-Wan-Da individual trophy which last year was won by Cameron.

Joe Diczno of Toluca, known as the man who will some day take Paddock's place, copped the 50 and 100 in class B.

O'CONNELL'S WILL PLAY HERE TODAY
Fast Springfield Team Will Face Indians—Hartman to Pitch for Visitors.

The O'Connell's of Springfield will try the abilities of Frank Smith's Indians this afternoon at South Side Park at 2:45 o'clock. In any circumstance, however, the game will be well worth watching.

The O'Connell manager writes that he will use the following line-up: Olive, cf; Wilkin, lf; James, rf; Kilcumings, 3b; Dorgan, ss; Rossiter, 2b; Farrell, lb; Ford, c; Hartman, p. The Indians will use the same team as last Sunday: Wheeler, lb; Clark, cf; Kohloff, 2b; Fanning, ss; Maurer, cf; Christopher, cf; Ruble, rf; DeFrates, 3b; Humeke, Reams and Van Ormer, p.

Humeke will probably start, with Reams being held in reserve.

JOHNSTON DISAPPOINTS IN OPENING GAMES
ST. CLOUD, May 19.—(By The Associated Press.)—Playing in disappointing fashion, William M. Johnston of California, defeated Gentien, a French school boy, in the first round of the men's singles in the world's hard court tennis championship today. The score was 6-4, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

In the mixed doubles against M. and Mme. Diener Kool of Holland, he showed great improvement but had to go down before the splendid play of the married pair, showed better tennis in every department of the game. Miss Eleonora Sears, who was Johnston's partner, was the weak end of the combination and it was commented that Johnston might have won with a better partner.

Fisticuffs' Eyes Turn to Shelby, Montana

SHELBY, Mont.—Sportdom's eyes were turned upon Shelby today.

A few weeks ago the little county seat of Toole county, in the center of the Okla. Sunburst oil field of northern Montana, was unheralded and unknown. Scarcely anything was heard about it outside its own immediate sphere. But today its fame has spread across the continent. Shelby's name is emblazoned now in bold-faced headlines in newspapers all over the land.

For this, Shelby can thank Loy J. Molunby and the other promoters—nearly all American Legion men—of the Jack Dempsey-Tom Gibbons titular heavyweight bout. It will be fought here July 4th.

Veteran Zack Wheat Is Showing The Way In National League

Shakes Off His Younger Challengers and Tops Averages with 435—Heilmann Further Increases His Lead, Now Hitting 518—Results in Other Leagues Over Country

CHICAGO, May 19.—Zack Wheat of the Brooklyn Dodgers, a war scarred veteran of hundreds of battles, shook off his younger challengers for batting honors of the National League and today is on the top of the heap with an average of .435 as a result of hitting safely nine times in his last five games.

The averages are based on figures including games of Wednesday and include players participating in fifteen or more games.

The Dodger slugger has a comfortable lead over Charley Grimm, the Pirate star, who is his nearest rival. Grimm, up to Wednesday, had played in twenty-five games, and smashed one or more hits each game, giving him a record for consecutive game hitting for the season. As runner-up to Wheat, he is parked in second place with a mark of .416, while Jimmy Bottomley, of the Cardinals batted himself into the .400 class, with an average of .409 for third place.

Cy Williams of the Phillies, another veteran, has made thirteen home runs, and is giving no indications of letting up. Sammy Bohne of the Reds, with his seven stolen bases, continues to top the base stealers.

Other leading batters:
Southworth, Boston, .400; Hornsby, St. Louis, .400; Frisch, New York, .387; McInnis, Boston, .365; O'Farrell, Chicago, .362; Bagwell, Boston, .360; Meyers, St. Louis, .357; Neis, Brooklyn, .355; Williams, Philadelphia, .354; Flack, St. Louis, .353.

American League
Veterans, headed by Harry Heilmann, Detroit star, are topping the regular hitters of the American league, with here and there a youngster striving to hold his own with the more experienced players. Heilmann has participated in 21 games up to the time the averages were computed and has cracked out one or more hits in each game, which boosted his average from .500 to the remarkable performance of .518. Sam Rice, of Washington, another veteran, is runner-up with an average of .377. Jamieson of Cleveland is trailing the fleet-footed Senator with .371.

Veach and Cobb of Detroit, Speaker of Cleveland, Burns of Boston and Eddie Collins of Chicago are well up among the leaders.

"Babe" Ruth gives promise of getting back into his specialty. The Yankee star drove out a brace of circuit drives, running his string up to four, but has covered only one-half the distance set by Ken Williams of the Browns, who is topping the home run clouters with eight. Captain Eddie Collins of the White Sox, has competition for the base stealing honors this week, in Jamieson of the Indians who pilfered five and tied Collins' mark of 10.

Collins has been forced to remain idle because of postponements, while the Indian outgardner has been in action.

Other leading batters:
Veach, Detroit, .370; Miller, Philadelphia, .364; Burns, Boston, .364; Cobb, Detroit, .360; Welch, Philadelphia, .359; Reichle, Boston, .357; Speaker, Cleveland, .357; Witt, New York, .333; Collins, Chicago, .333; Haney, Detroit, .333.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION
Bunny Brief of Kansas City is having the best year of his career in the American association. The Kaws' slugger has connected with 19 home runs, six of which were made in the past week. His closest rival is Carl East, of the Minneapolis slugger who has a total of five.

Brief cracked out a dozen hits in his last six games, which places him at the head of hitters with an average of .459. Smith of Toledo is the runner-up to Brief with a mark of .413, and Eddie Murphy of Columbus, the veteran Athletic and White Sox star, is next with .397. Murphy also is blazing the paths for the base stealers, with 10.

Other leading batters:
Terry, Toledo, .393; Roth, Kansas City, .387; Brooks, Columbus, .380; Lamar, Toledo, .377; Jones, Louisville, .367; Brown, Indianapolis, .364; Sickling, Indianapolis, .364; Davis, Columbus, .361; M. Shannon, Louisville, .349; Johnson, Milwaukee, .346.

Western League
Lewan of St. Joseph continues to hold the spot-light among the batters of the Western League, with an average of .430, a mark compiled in 23 games in which he has made 49 hits. Diamond, of Denver, is next with .424 and Bauman of Tulsa, is third with .402.

Davis of Tulsa did not fare so well during the last week in the home run department, but managed to bag one circuit blow and bring his string up to 11. Conlan of Wichita and J. Griffin of Omaha, are hooked up in an interesting race for base stealing honors. Conlan is showing the

LEADING UMPIRES FAVOR PLAN TO FORM ASSOCIATION

(By NEA Service)
NEW YORK.—Umpires from the majors and leading minor leagues are seriously contemplating forming a protective association. The purpose of the organization is the betterment of conditions for the umpires.

Recently in New York at an informal gathering of a dozen umpires working the major and minor league games in New York and vicinity, the matter was given much consideration.

The original thought is to band together the umpires from the two major and the large minors, the International League, American Association, Pacific Coast League and Southern.

If such a combine is formed no doubt all the smaller minors would seek affiliation. Just at present the umpires have many grievances, which it is believed could be adjusted to their advantage, if the officials were banded together.

It was proposed that some retired veteran umpire be placed at the head of the organization.

Rank Outsider Won Annual Kentucky Derby

Harry Sinclair's Zev at 40 to 2 Takes Lead and Holds It Thruout

Martingale Was Second and Vigil, One of Heavily Played Favorites, Was in Third Place—Race Was Witnessed by 75,000, Greatest That Ever Saw a Race in America

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 19.—Zev, Harry F. Sinclair's brown colt—the horse that came back after finishing next to last in the $50,000 Preakness a week ago—today entered the racing hall of fame when he won the forty-ninth Kentucky Derby before a crowd of 75,000 persons, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race in America. The little brown colt by The Finn-Miss Kearney, defeated twenty of the best three year olds in the nation, the largest field that ever started in the classic.

Starting from tenth position from the inner rail, Zev shot into the lead a few feet after leaving the barrier and led the field until the fall of the flag, crossing the wire a length and a half ahead of Martingale, owned by J. C. Cosden. Walter J. Salmon's Virgil, winner of the Preakness stakes, finished third, one length behind Martingale.

The race, at one and a quarter miles, was run over a track lightening fast, the time being 2:05 2-5 two seconds slower than the record for the event set by Old Rosebud in 1914 Nassau, owned by Frederick Johnson, pulled up in fourth place by a nose, while Chittagong, owned by Mrs. John P. Hertz of Chicago, was fifth, a length back of Nassau.

In the fighting bunch back of Chittagong, came Harry Payne Whitney's Enchantment, who captured sixth place while Rialto owned by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney finished seventh.

The race was worth $53,625 net to Mr. Sinclair who was not present to witness the brilliant victory of his sterling colt. Martingale's owner received $6,000 as second place money, while $3,000 went to Vigil for third place, and $1000 to Nassau for fourth.

A $2 ticket in the pari mutuels paid $40.40 on Zev's victory. The price on Martingale was $25.80 to place, and Vigil's show price was $12.30.

The field went to the post at 4:47 o'clock, and after a delay of six minutes, due to the unmanageable Nassau, starter William H. Hamilton, sprung the barrier and a historic cheer rose from the crowd as the horses plunged into a stride. Martingale, momentarily snatched the lead as the field started its dash past the grandstand, but little Earl Sande riding Zev, quickly jerked his charge into the commanding position, sending him to the front with all the speed for which he is famous.

Jockey Sande laying his head close to Zev's streaming neck, kept his horse hugging the rail as he swept past the grandstand, two lengths in the lead with Martingale trailing and Nassau fighting back in third place. Vigil was tenth at the quarter, eighth at the half mile, fifth into the stretch and with Jockey Garner vigorously applying the whip, started to dash for the wire a length behind Martingale with Nassau fourth.

With a lead of two lengths to his credit, Jockey Sande piloted Zev around the back stretch and straightened out for the wire. Martingale continued the fight to retain second place, having the advantage of a length over Vigil, which was gaining at every step and making a valiant bid for second place. Running like mad horses, Zev and Martingale shot under the wire a length and a half separating them.

The crowd became hysterical lifting to the winner's name in a mighty shout and surging around the judges' stand, to get a glimpse of Zev and his little blond jockey.

Greatest Crowd in History
Never before in the history of the derby has such an enormous crowd packed Churchill Downs. It was a crowd of power, wealth and beauty—beautiful women in holiday gowns making the club house and lawn in front of the grandstand a symphony of color. For half a mile the unlucky spectators unable to get seats stood shoulder to shoulder in a sweltering mass, thousands of them able to see only a small part of any race because of the dense throng. As the horses thundered past in the stretch, the picture presented a sea of bobbing heads as the human jumping jacks leaped high in the air for a glimpse of the flying horses. The pressure became so great that the infield was thrown open shortly after two o'clock and thousands surged into the enclosure for breathing space.

Derby day broke partly cloudy and still, but before noon a friendly sun blazed from the sky with such intensity that the perspiring spectators sought relief under the shade of verandas while the men shed their coats. As soon as the gates were open at 8 o'clock this morning a sizable string of racing fans filed through the turnstiles. By 10 o'clock the entering crowd thickened. Before noon every seat in the huge grandstand was filled and when the horses went to the post for the first race of the day the crowd was so thick that men picked out trees and women climbed chairs and fences to find a spot to view the spectacle.

After Zev's triumph, Governor Ed-

ONLY THREE NATIONS HAVE CAPTURED THE DAVIS CUP MATCHES

By VINCENT RICHARDS
Famous Tennis Star

The international lawn tennis championship, which really means nothing more than the famous Davis Cup matches, have more than justified their name, since they were first put into competition.

It is more than two decades since the Davis Cup was first exact. The cup was not contested for during the war (1915 to 1918 inclusive), and in one year, (1919) there were no matches at all.

Only three nations have won the Davis Cup. They are the United States, the British Isles and Australia. The United States has won the cup six times. The British Isles won it five times and Australia has equaled the United States record.

Belgium and Japan were the only nations who ever got to the challenge round. In 1904 Belgium's win from France gave her the right to challenge the British Isles for the famous trophy. Japan in 1921 defeated the Australians in the challenge round but was defeated by the United States for the famous cup in the next round.

The outstanding Davis Cup players are undoubtedly the late H. L. Doherty and Norman E. Brookes. The Briton represented his country five times in international matches. Out of the 13 matches that he played he won every one. Doherty was a truly great player.

To Norman E. Brookes belongs the honor of having played in nine ties, the greatest number of any living tennis player. In a period of nine years Brookes played the greatest number of matches, 39 in all. He won 28 and lost 11 in this period of time.

Wilding comes next with 29 matches, McLoughlin with 20, Beals Wright with 16 and Larned with 15. Of late years Tilden and Johnston are, of course, the outstanding figures in the Davis Cup matches. According to Gerald L. Patterson, captain of last year's Australian contenders, as long as America has Tilden and Johnston to defend the famous trophy it will remain in the United States. We agree with him perfectly.

Very often some slight accident on the very eve of the race forces the withdrawal of many of the real contenders. While 70 nominations are showing Derby stuff at present, from now on many cuts will be made in the probable starters.

Last year Olympus was picked to make things interesting for Morvich, yet in his final trial for the event something went wrong and he was withdrawn at the eleventh hour and those who had wagered on him in the winter book didn't even get a run for their money.

Trying to pick the winner for the Derby this year is some job, turf experts agree. There is no horse in the race that stands out as did Morvich last year.

After perusing the dope of the wise guys on the possibilities of the race at least a dozen loom up as strong contenders.

The recent fine performance of Sally's Alley has won many a supporter for Kilmer's filly. It is a rather interesting fact that only one filly, Regret, has ever been a contender for the Derby. The going in the Derby is so strenuous, however, that an owner seldom starts his entry unless he feels that it has a good chance. Such being the case, the general belief is that the nominations will be so reduced by Derby Day that one division will take care of the event.

The fine showing of Wilderness in winning the Pacific handicap at Havre De Grace has won him many supporters. He was in fine form, covering the six furlongs in 1:12 3-5, beating a great field.

In the winter books Enchantment continues to remain favorite. The going in the Derby is so strenuous, however, that an owner seldom starts his entry unless he feels that it has a good chance. "Zev" Winner of Kentucky Derby

Billy Evans Says

NEW YORK—How many horses will start in the Kentucky Derby? At present that question is puzzling the experts as much as picking the probable winner.

Something like 140 nominations have been made for the classic, and at present perhaps half of them are showing enough stuff to warrant the belief that they will start.

Getting a three-year-old ready for the Derby is a serious proposition. So early a start as May 19 makes it necessary to hurry the conditions of many a horse, so that he will be able to travel the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter.

Some of the horses who also looked good to me, yet who as two-year-olds did nothing phenomenal, were Carol, Better Luck and Hyperion. Carol, who seems to be adding to his following daily, stepped a mile while I looked on in 1:47 and was held in check all the way.

If all the horses start who are now regarded as certain, it will be necessary to split the event into two divisions. This is never quite as satisfactory, since there exists the element of doubt as to which is really the best horse.

The going in the Derby is so strenuous, however, that an owner seldom starts his entry unless he feels that it has a good chance. Such being the case, the general belief is that the nominations will be so reduced by Derby Day that one division will take care of the event.

FAILS TWICE TO WIN VARSITY BERTH AND NOW RATED AS STAR

(By NEA Service)

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Perseverance, like confidence, is a mighty valuable asset in any branch of endeavor. Without it not a great deal is accomplished. With it good results are many. It can well be coupled with that old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Perseverance! Well, that's just what "Big Bill" Van Orden of the University of Michigan track team possesses. In fact, that Bill's middle name, for his makeup is filled with it. If such were not the case, Coach Steve Farrell and the Wolverines would no doubt be minus a first-class athlete this season.

Three years ago, "Big Bill" came out for the varsity thin-clad squad. He came as a shot-putter. He had the necessary physique to heave the leaden ball. But that about let him out. Just a novice at the event, Van Orden lacked the form required to get distance into his tosses as he was unable to use his natural strength to the best advantage. He could not even come close to the 40-foot mark. The result was that he was soon dropped from the team.

The next season again found Van Orden on the job. He showed up better, improvement being apparent, but still he wasn't good enough to make a regular place on the outfit. When the scythe was swung, "Big Bill" was once again in his path.

But "Big Bill" Van Orden did not give up. He kept right on plugging, practicing at every opportunity. And slowly but surely he picked up the correct form and the various fine points which go to make real shot-putters.

Today Van Orden ranks as the premier athlete at his event in the Western Conference; in fact, in the middle west. He has won his "first place" in every meet he has participated in thus far this season. Against Cornell he showed the pill out over 44 feet, and it is predicted that he will better this mark considerably outdoors. He is already being picked as the winner in the shot-putting event at the Big Ten meet in June.

Michigan has an almost certain "five-point" man in "Big Bill" Van Orden this season, regardless of the competition. And all because he had the grit, the perseverance to succeed, despite all obstacles.

FORMER GIANT PITCHERS SEEK MCGRAW'S SCALP

By NEA Service.

New York—When Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants turned Rube Marquard over to Brooklyn, the Rubes then and there vowed vengeance against McGraw.

Since Marquard joined the Dodgers, he has trimmed the Giants a number of times and always seems to derive much satisfaction therefrom.

There are those who argue that McGraw is simply getting his just deserts for consigning Rube to a place like Brooklyn. Marquard always being very partial to the spotlight.

This year Marquard will be joined by two other pitchers in the plot to overthrow the Giants. Rube Benton and Fred Toney, former New York pitchers, complete the trio.

McGraw sent Rube Benton to the minors, when Benton was still some pitcher. Now he comes back to the National league as a member of the Cincinnati Reds.

Benton says he is going to convince McGraw what an awful mistake he made by handing him a ticket to the bushes minus the return trip coupon.

After Fred Toney had flattered against the Yankees in the 1921 world series McGraw traded the big pitcher to Boston. Toney refused to report, insisting he wouldn't be in the league if he joined Boston. The Braves finished such a bad last that Toney had close to the right dope.

Toney came back to National league a member of the St. Louis Cardinals. He is doing a comeback because he believes the Cardinals can win, and because he can help such an event by trimming the Giants for four or five games which he says he will positively do.

Looks like an open season for McGraw.

American Golfers Retain Possession of Walker Trophy

Played a Great Uphill Game in Defeating England's Best in Battle for Emblem of Team Supremacy in the Realm of Golf—Dr. O. F. Willing is the Outstanding Star

ST. ANDREWS, May 19.—Eight American golfers fought their way upward to victory over the best amateurs of Great Britain in the singles matches this afternoon, by winning five contests and halving a sixth, and retained for their country possession of the Walker cup, emblem of team supremacy in the realm of golf.

This ancient seat of the game has thru centuries been the scene of many a thrilling competition. Last night the United States team had one victory to three defeats as their record in the foursomes. At noon today they were down in five of the eight singles and the other three were squares then with 18 holes to go in all these eight matches, and the Britishers needing only four to gain the cup, the Americans stepped forth upon the fairways and came home with five victories, one tie and only two defeats. Thus they kept the cup by a score of six and one-half matches to five and one-half.

WILL HEAR CHILDREN IN CONCERT PROGRAM

Much Interest Attached to Alumnae Association Concert at Woman's College Next Saturday

Increasing interest is being shown in the concert arranged for next Saturday night by the Illinois Woman's College Alumnae association. On that occasion little students of child culture from the kindergarten classes of Millikin university at Decatur will be heard in recital at Music hall at 7:30 o'clock.

In addition to the children from the classes several child artists will assist with the program. In this group is Helen Bannon, about whom a critic said recently: "She is a very promising little harpist who is a serious musician in spite of the fact that she looks like a doll come to life. She has remarkable poise and assurance for one so young. Helen Bannon has given several programs recently for Lyon & Healy in Chicago and is known as one of the youngest child harpists in the state."

Another of the child artists is Evelyn Swarthout, little daughter of Prof. Donald Swarthout, former director of music at the College of Music here.

Ruth Talbot, child soloist, will give two groups, the first especially arranged to please children and several groups of advanced numbers.

Aubrey Royce will give a group of Italian readings and also a group of readings with music.

The entire program will be under the direction of Miss Esther Requaerth who is director of the child culture classes in Millikin, and has given many programs in Illinois and also in Wisconsin.

The program Saturday evening will include much of the regular work of the child culture studies and the message of little children expressed in a musical way will be a joy to Jacksonville people. Tickets are now being sold by members of the Alumnae association and can also be obtained at Brown's Music store and at Illinois Woman's college. Prices are: adults 50c, children 25c.

WINCHESTER HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Residence of Edward King Partially Wrecked by Flames Saturday Afternoon—Coal Oil Stove Explodes in Kitchen and Causes Conflagration.

Winchester, May 19.—Fire caused by the explosion of a coal oil stove, partially destroyed the residence of Edward King in this city about four o'clock this afternoon. The flames quickly spread from the kitchen to the adjoining rooms and had gained considerably headway before the firemen could get them under control.

The department responded quickly to the alarm and fought to save the building. It was thought for a time that adjacent dwellings would take fire; but no other buildings were damaged. Little more than the frame of the King home was left standing. A portion of the contents, some furniture and some clothing, were saved, but much of it was destroyed.

James Metzler of Colorado Springs, Colo., is visiting here with his mother and other relatives.

$1,031 SECURED FOR COMING CELEBRATION

Campaign Only Partially Complete, With Number of Teams Not Reported—Merchants Give Ready Response to Appeal.

In the drive for funds for the United Spanish War Veterans encampment and the dedication of the new soldiers building, up to Saturday night nine teams had reported a total collection of $1,031. The other nine teams have not yet reported, but General Chairman Rodgers feels that from the way everyone who is approached has been contributing, the full amount of $2,500 will be easily reached by Monday night.

By a perusal of the daily papers, it will be seen that Decatur is becoming quite a city for conventions. There is no apparent reason why Jacksonville should not bear as great a reputation along this line. If conventions coming here are given the proper attention and entertainment. At the same time, this drive being for a purely patriotic gathering, the contributors are having an added opportunity of showing their respect for the boys who, in the past, showed the supreme devotion for their country.

HOBGING DE LUXE TO BE THE PRIVILEGE OF TOURISTS THRU STATE

Cities All Over Illinois are Preparing to Greet Transient Guests With An Open Hand—Camps are Arranged in Virtually Every City in State—Read About Them

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 19.—Hobging de luxe will be the privilege of tourists in Illinois this summer. With a large portion of the state moving out on wheels over the hundreds of miles of new hard roads, cities all over the commonwealth have prepared to meet their transient guests with more than an open hand. Out-door hotels is what the motored hosts will find in most of the places where they stop in Illinois.

In virtually every city of the state tourists camps have been arranged in preparation for what is expected to be the greatest avalanche of automobilists ever turned loose on the state. These camps in most places are supplied with electric lights, running water, toilet facilities, stoves of some kind and fuel, and in several cities public enterprise has even gone so far as to revive the "country store" where the travelers may replenish their food supplies and buy other necessary articles. One town supplies free dances, free towels and free ice water, and another offers the use of electric laundry machines.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce is fostering the tourist camp. After a compilation of the camps of the state, the chamber concluded that "Illinois probably has more of these tourists camps than any state in the middle west."

The list of camps include the following:
"Bloomington—A model tourists' camp, which will include a small grocery store, is being constructed at Six Points, southwest of Bloomington. In addition to the store there will be a deep well for fresh water, brick ovens and other accommodations. The grounds also will be electrically lighter. There is also a beautiful tourists camp at Miller park with free camp grounds, ovens, water, toilets, golf grounds, a lake, fishing, bathing and shelter house.

The Bloomington Chamber of Commerce maintains a tourist information bureau with E. I. Moellre in charge.

Chicago—Twelve tourist camp sites are to be established this year in the Cook county forest have no difficulty in finding them. Each camp will be in charge of the caretaker of the particular forest preserve in which it is located.

Danville—The tourist camp is located in the northeast section of the city and is known as Garfield park. There is a rest house with lavatories and shower baths. Fireplaces that burn wood provide cooking facilities.

Decatur—As Decatur is located at an intersection of the Meridian Trail and the Ocean to Ocean Trail, a large number of tourists camp there each season. The Decatur Motor club in co-operation with city officials has maintained a tourists' camp in Fairview park. This year the camp is being moved to a more attractive location in the same park. The camp is not far from the business section. The Decatur Motor club maintains a downtown office where information may be secured regarding roads, etc.

De Kalb—In De Kalb the tourist camp is located on the outskirts of the city near the state teachers' college. It has bakes, ovens, city water, electric lights, lavatories, etc. An attractive feature is the country store, carrying everything needed by campers and with a telephone service. Tourist traveling from Ocean to Ocean have repeatedly written that this country store is one of the best they have seen between New York and San Francisco.

Dixon—The Dixon free tourist camp ground was one of the first established in the State of Illinois. It is situated just one block from the Lincoln Highway and has adequate room for 200 machines. North of the open space where brick fire places, water, toilet facilities are available, is a beautiful wooded stretch and a rising knoll that protects the camp from any north winds. The Chamber of Commerce has a man to take care of the sanitary conditions and supply wood. The tourist committee this year is planning on making some improvement on this service.

Elgin—For months an improved tourist camp has been in operation in Wing park on the outskirts of Elgin. While Wing park is a beautiful spot, it is rather out of the way and difficult for strangers to find and is without the natural facilities that all well regulated tourist camps have. Last summer the Kiwanis club members took an interest in the tourist camp proposition and now have established a new camp of three acres within three hundred feet of the Grant Highway. Running water and electric lights have been provided. The tourist will find every convenience for cooking and comfortable camping. The Kiwanis club has put up signs on all highways entering Elgin directing tourists to the camp.

Field—One city park located in the northeast part of the city has been arranged for the tourists to use as a camp ground. The park is a natural woods and the ground is high and drains well. In the park a beautiful lake has been made. There is plenty of good water, a shelter has been provided, seats made and everything done to assist the happy tourist. This camp is located one block north of the concrete Atlantic-Pacific Highway, running across the state from Mt. Carmel to St. Louis, and the route is in good shape for travel.

Freeport—For the past two years Freeport has maintained a tourist camp and this year will establish one on a new site. There will be plenty of water, toilet and cooking facilities and shelter for a limited number of cars. The grounds will be lighted with electric lights.

Galena—The Jo Davies County Fair association permits tourists to camp on the fair grounds at Galena. The grounds have large shady trees and toilet facilities and are located about a mile north of the main business part of the city.

Jacksonville—Jacksonville boasts of one of the finest free tourist camps in this section of the state. It is located in the southeast part of the city in Nichols park. The camper is privileged to play golf on the municipal course, swim in the new municipal pool, fish and boat ride in Morgan lake. Supervised public dances are held at the park on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings during the summer. The camp grounds is equipped with furnaces, fire wood, electric lights, toilets, city water, dining room tables and chairs, not to mention the fact that it is open all times. The Chamber of Commerce provides a tourist rest and lounging room in its headquarters for those persons who wish to stop in town for an hour or so. Clean towels, ice water, tourist road information and maps are all furnished free of charge.

Joliet—Six thousand tourists in 1,500 automobiles used the free tourist camp in Pilcher park, Joliet, last year—the first year it was open, and without any kind of advertising, except good words passed on by those who had enjoyed it. The caretaker at the park, who expects fully 3,000 cars will stop over night this season, estimates that each car of tourists spends $7 when they pass the night here. The camp site, located in Pilcher park, a 327 acre tract of natural woodland given by Robert Pilcher and family to the City of Joliet two years ago, is on the main Lincoln Highway, two miles east of the business district. The equipment, while not expensive, consists of a shelter house, cook ovens, lunch tables, road wall, toilet and

SHORT SELLING DANGEROUS

Babson Warns Speculators

Millions of Dollars Threatened in Present Market

Wellesley Hills, Mass., May 18, 1923.—The recent bear raids in the stock market have led a large number of small speculators to believe that good stock market days are over. Popular fancy in this quarter is turning to short selling. Since the technical position of the market is being undermined by this move, Roger V. Babson's warning against this practice issued today is particularly timely.

"I do not pretend to be able to forecast the short swings of the stock market," says Mr. Babson, "but I do know that the short interest, developed since the recent bear raids—probably the largest in recent years—has reached a point where it is very dangerous. This is largely due to the fact that speculators all over the country have been carried away by the prevailing bearish propaganda and have gone 'short' just as they buy stocks when surface conditions look optimistic. It looks as easy to sell as to buy and it is my guess that the majority of these speculators do not understand the position that short selling places them in."

"Let us see what happens. If you gave the broker an order to sell 100 shares of some stock short, he actually borrows the stock from one of his other customers who owns it, or from some other broker. He actually sells this borrowed stock for you. You put up the cash to guarantee the present value or a margin deposit to protect your broker. If the stock happens to go up, you are called on for more margin. If you can't cover it, the broker buys the stock in at the market and returns it to the original owner. You stand the loss. So far short selling presents only the dangers attending ordinary marginal buying—a few points in the wrong direction and you are wiped out."

"It must also be borne in mind, however, that you did not borrow the stock and that you did not borrow it for any given time. The owner can call on you at any time for it, and you must return it. If your broker can borrow some more for you somewhere else, all right; but if he can't, you must buy the stock in the open market and return it to him. How high the price goes or how much cash you have to protect your margins. Moreover, if these 100 shares pay a dividend which you are short of, then you must also pay that."

"Multiply your own short position by several thousand and the greatest danger of the practice is apparent. The short interest is very soon larger than the number of shares of the given stock that are for sale. Prices advance two or three points and a few of the shorts cannot put up the increased margins. Brokers go into the market to buy the stock, to return it. The demand raises prices a bit, then there are more shorts that are forced to cover. The market strengthens and brokers rush in to get the securities they must secure—behold, there are no more for sale. Prices skyrocket and the speculators who are short are wiped out. It is interesting to note here that there is no limit to your losses on a short sale. If you buy a stock at 50 you cannot possibly lose more than 50 points, but if you sell it short at 50 it may go to 100 or 500 or even to 1000 and you must cover and stand the loss.

"The short interests for instance, were caught in Stutz in April 1920. The stock had been selling between 100 and 145. The moment the short sales exceeded the floating or available supply prices started to climb and went to 24. The N. Y. Stock Exchange then stepped in but the short interest had to settle at the rate of $5.50 a share. The same stock may be had today around 20."

"More recently the corner in Piggy Wiggly has illustrated once more the extremely weak position of the speculator who is short. This stock has been trading between 40 and 64. The majority of the short interests probably sold it around 50. When the stock was called for there was none to be had. Prices soared and it was taken off the exchange. Settlement was finally made at the rate of $100 a share.

"These spectacular cases illustrate our point but do not represent the great losses resulting from short selling. Millions of dollars are endangered today on the short side of the present market, a growing accumulation that goes shakier as it piles higher. A rise of three to five points would start as it piles higher. A rise of three to five points would start the drive that would practically wipe this interest out. Moreover, fundamental conditions do not indicate that business has gone to pot. Business is still good. Conditions are against the short sellers and their chances to win dwindle as the short interest grows."

"In fact, general business, as reflected in the Babson chart, is still above normal by 4 per cent," concluded Mr. Babson, "and will doubtless continue into 1924. There is nothing in one fundamental situation to indicate that the stock market has reached its top. Short selling at best is dangerous—short selling against fundamental conditions is apt to be suicidal."

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SUIT LONG PENDING

Has Been in Courts for Sixteen Years—End is Not Yet in Sight.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—A law suit which has engaged the legal department of the state of Illinois for 16 years still is pending and the termination of the litigation is not yet in sight. It is the suit for accounting brought against the Illinois Central railroad in 1907.

Judge Hirman T. Gilbert, one of the attorneys representing the state in this case, has the unusual distinction of having devoted virtually all his time for 16 years to this one law suit.

Arguments on some phases of this case have been of the marathon variety. Arguments on exceptions to the report of the master in chancery have been continuing since last October, and one attorney, W. S. Horton, general counsel for the Illinois Central, started his oral arguments January 15 and is still in the midst of the argument. He devoted three or four days each week to the task before the court.

These cases were started at the direction of Governor Charles S. Deneen in 1907 against the road to compel an accounting under its charter obligation to pay seven per cent of its gross earnings to the state in lieu of all other taxes. The defendant operates 705.5 miles of charter lines in Illinois. It was chartered by the general assembly in 1851. The charter granted the company a right of way not exceeding 200 feet in width through its entire length and also granted 2,595,000 acres of land and certain other property. Since that time the road has constructed many more miles of line, which do not come under its original charter and on which it pays ordinary taxes and is not bound by the seven per cent provision of the original charter.

The state has contended that the earnings are not properly apportioned as between the charter lines and non-charter lines, and that by improperly apportioning earnings to non-charter lines the state is deprived of millions of dollars in taxes. Since its organization the railroad has paid about $25,000,000 to the state under its charter obligation.

The trial court sustained a demurrer to the state's complaint but on appeal this ruling was reversed in part and the case was remanded for further proceedings. The case was then referred to a special master in chancery. The master in chancery made his report to the court after years of listening to evidence, and now stands in court on motion to suppress the master's report and these exceptions on the part of the state alone fill two large printed volumes.

The case thus far is considered one of the classics of Illinois legal proceedings. The taking of testimony alone before the master in chancery has consumed upwards of 15 years, and no one now ventures a guess as to when the case will come to an end.

PUBLISH SYNOPSIS OF TWELFTH NIGHT

Shakespearean Play to Be Given on Illinois College Campus Tuesday Afternoon Is Summarized in Short Sketch—Is Light Comedy

At the request of friends the following synopsis of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, which is to be given on the Illinois college campus Tuesday evening, May 22nd, is given below:

"Viola, daughter of a noble Italian family, is shipwrecked on the coast of Illyria. In the guise of a man, and under the name of Cesario, she finds service with Orsino, Duke of Illyria, and secretly falls in love with him. Orsino is in love with Olivia, an Illyrian lady who does not, however, return his affection. Olivia falls in love with Cesario, who is the frequent bearer of messages from the Duke.

Sebastian, the twin brother of Viola, who was wrecked with his sister, and who was presumed to have perished, now makes his appearance, and is persuaded by Olivia, who takes him for course for Cesario, to marry that lady.

Later on, Olivia is surprised to find Cesario, whom she supposed to be her husband, still in the service of the Duke, and reveals her marriage. The Duke, angered by what he takes to be the perfidy of his servant, warns Cesario never to see his face again. At this point, Sebastian makes his appearance to the astonishment of the company, and the relationship of himself and Cesario is made clear. Olivia Orsino makes ready to wed Viola, to whom he discovered he has been becoming more and more attached.

In the sub-plot of the play, we have Sir Toby Belch, the uncle of Olivia, who makes merry at the expense of Sir Andrew Aguecheek, his wealthy dupe, and a would-be suitor to Olivia. Sir Toby unites with Maria in a plot upon Malvolio, steward to Olivia, in the course of which, Malvolio is deceived into the belief that he is loved by his mistress, and is at last confined as a lunatic. The play ends with his release, and indignant threat of revenge."

COLLEGE OF MUSIC NOTES

The next recital in the College of Music will be given by the certificate students of the Public School Music Supervisor's course. The program will comprise violin, vocal, piano and organ numbers. The public is invited to attend.

Thursday evening, May 24th, and Friday evening and Saturday afternoon will be devoted to the younger pupils of the College of Music. The programs will be divided as equally as possible, one class demonstration being held on each occasion. The children will play short compositions of their own, besides their regular solos, as melody writing has been one of the leading features of the year's work and has proved very popular with the young folk. Over ninety children will be heard in all.

Grace Styles, former music student, has been visiting at the college for the past few days.

One of the numbers on Suzanne Rinehart's recent program was a song with violin obligato, composed by herself, entitled, "Trust Not What Seems Lovely" and sung by Fredericka Balch.

Several advanced pupils of the piano, vocal and violin departments provided music for Mr. Fred High's community lectures in nearby towns last week. These students included Marie Luke, Mary Lois Clark, Christine Cotner and Gwendolynne Schroyer.

The last issue of Musical America contained an interesting account of the inauguration of the new headquarters of the W. E. A. F., radio station in New York City, where Miss Sapiro and Miss Horsburgh will give a joint program on June 15.

Director Pearson has the pleasure of announcing that all members of the Music Faculty will return next fall to resume their work in the College of Music.

About fifty faculty and students, attended the Galli-Curci concert in Springfield on Friday evening.

WOMAN'S COLLEGE NOTES

Endowment!! That's all the faculty and students have thought about since the first of school, and how much that word means to all of us. Never has a week been more thrilling than this last one, when we had Dr. Terry here, and with his help had stunts and speeches each day in chapel. Saturday morning at chapel time a very peppy stunt was presented. Songs were sung, and a report was made, Saturday morning at nine o'clock the last pledges were signed, making the student body 100 per cent toward the Endowment fund. Never in the history of the college has there been so much pep and enthusiasm shown by the students and faculty; their motto is "Win or Bust."

While every one is busy working for Endowment they are also working for Field and Track Day, which will be held some time this evening week on the college campus. This is a new feature for I. W. C., but it promises to be such a success this year that it will be made a big yearly event. A great spirit of rivalry will be displayed for some time to create pep and enthusiasm. The exact date will be announced later, and the public will have the pleasure of seeing what real athletes the college has.

The "Charm School" will be put on by the Dramatic Club Saturday evening, June 2nd, in Music Hall at 8:30 o'clock. This play has been very successful as an amateur play.

Telephone Talk No. 18

"Excuse It Please"

Occasionally there is no one on the line when you answer your telephone. This may be due to several causes:

You may have been slow in answering and the person calling, possibly having grown impatient, has hung up.

The calling person, suddenly conscious of having called the wrong number, has replaced the receiver on the hook without waiting for a response.

Your line is looped through many sections of switchboards so that it is available to a multitude of operators. The operator who answers your calls knows nothing about incoming calls to your telephone.

If the calling person hangs up and is disconnected your line is automatically shifted to the calling position and the operator asks what number you want. When you reply that your bell rang, her request that you "Excuse it please," seems an admission that we have been at fault, but frequently this is not the case.

The individual progress of a city is the progress of its individual citizens. Clean streets, fine buildings, parks—all expressions of confidence in the community and civic pride—produce an appearance of progress.

The man who dresses properly, who appears before others in garments that fit, and keeps pace with the world about him, appears successful and progressive.

EQUALLY as important as civic beauty and progress is that personal and individual self-confidence which impels people to dress well. The world judges largely by appearance. It has been our privilege and our function to advance this city's position by dressing its citizens properly and protect their appearance through many years.

Your call this spring will be appreciated.

Goodyear Tires are not High Priced

Some people have the opinion that a tire with such high quality material and long service must be high priced. They are mistaken.

It is produced in such volume, and by such economical methods that it can be sold at a price lower than others must get for tires of comparable quality or less.

The Goodyear Cord is built by the Goodyear method of group-ply construction, with the plies laid in alternate groups insulated with pure rubber. That means reduced internal friction, and consequently longer wear. This group ply construction is a patented feature found only in Goodyear tires.

Its carcass is made of selected long-staple cotton, with the highest tensile strength of any cotton used in tire building.

It is armored with high-grade tread stock, thicker than the treads of most tires. This stock is carried down to the bead, making a strong sidewall that is highly resistive to rut wear and curb wear.

Its tread design has an efficient, non-skid character, a high resilience, and a distinctive resistance to wear.

Diamond Grove Memorial Mausoleum

In Rose Hill Cemetery, Chicago, stands the largest and one of the most beautiful mausoleums in the world, a temple of pure Greek architecture, its corridors lined and sealed with snowy marble. After contemplating it, one begins to understand the increasing appreciation among discriminating people of this form of caring for our dead.

It is gratifying to reflect that this imposing pile, eloquent of the refined taste, artistic development and skill in building operations of our modern civilization, has demonstrated conclusively the growing appreciation of our people of the need of this form of interment. Rose Hill indeed will long stand as a most complete expression of one of the deepest and oldest emotions of human nature, that the highest type of civilization that the world has ever seen has been able to evolve through the aid of the most advanced science and consummate art.

laundry facilities. The park district commissioners hope to make improvements and betterments this spring to take care of the increasing demands.

Kankakee—There is no tourist camp in Kankakee sponsored by the city government or by the Chamber of Commerce but Electric park, which is under private management, is used for this purpose. Five miles east of Kankakee river are numerous camping grounds under private management.

Kewanee—An ideal over night stop is provided at Kewanee by the tourist camp in a public park a mile west of the center of the business district. Good roads lead to it and city water, wood for fire and toilet facilities are provided. This year it is expected that the city park board will erect a new brick building as a combined comfort station which will also include a rest room and toilet and bath rooms.

Momence—In Momence a fine tourist camp is located on an island in the center of the city.
There are eleven acres in the plot, with two wells, toilets, etc.
The park has recently been acquired by the city at a cost of $1,500 largely thru the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mattoon—Located at the junction of the Egyptian and Big Four trails, Mattoon offers a section of Peterson park, its largest city park for the accommodation of auto tourists.

The camp is maintained by the city and all necessary conveniences such as oven, toilets, water lights are furnished free. Its location, one-half mile east of the business center, on Broadway, is most accessible.

Ottawa—Allen park, Ottawa's tourist camp, is on the south bank of the Illinois river near the center of the city. It is supplied with hot and cold water,
shower baths, benches, swings,
running water, toilet facilities and a small commissary store.
There are also electric lights, stoves, fuel. The camp is located near the Santicula health springs.
Near Ottawa also is the famous Starved Rock state park. It is understood that the State of Illinois expects to make Starved Rock state park camping ground a model. There are at the present time some privately owned cottages on this site which it is expected will be removed.

Peoria—Peoria has two tourist camps. One is located at the Peoria water works park, corner
Lorentz avenue and Galena road, on the Chicago-St. Louis hard road, north of Peoria. This camp is on the Illinois river, where bathing, fishing and boating may be enjoyed. The camp equipment includes shelter, toilets, general store, ovens, electric lights, water, police protection and other advantages. There is a tennis court, baseball diamond and various athletic facilities located on the grounds. A part of this park is used by residents of Peoria and surrounding towns for picnic purposes, and there is a ball game in progress practically every Saturday and Sunday thruout the season. Grand View park is located just across Galena road. In this park there is a very elaborate children's playground, a pavilion where dancing may be enjoyed, tables and seats, etc. The other camp is located on the Chicago-St.
Louis hard road on the Peoria state hospital grounds just south of Peoria, and is equipped with toilets, water, shelter, tables, ovens, and a general store nearby.

Pontiac—A very modern tourist camp is maintained at Pontiac about twelve blocks from the court house square. The grounds are shady and surrounded on three sides by a winding river.
The public play park is just across the river. A number of organizations in Pontiac will combine their efforts this season to make this tourist camp one of the best in Illinois.

Quincy—One of Quincy's chief bids for fame in the establishment of a tourist camp is the fact that last October a baby girl was born to a couple during a temporary stay at the camp. At last reports the little one was getting along splendidly. She was named "Ladeline Quincy." The camp has twenty-eight acres of wooded land. City water is plentifully supplied. The camp is adjacent to an amusement park and is within a five minute ride of the heart of the city. There are toilet facilities and fuel is furnished to all.

Rockford—There are two tourist camps in Rockford. The principal one is located at Blackhawk park, on the banks of the Rock Island river at the south end of the city. There is also a camp at Ingersoll Memorial park, adjacent to the Grant Highway, west of the city. At Blackhawk park there are several fire places and a supply of fire wood is kept on hand for the tourists. Running water is available and also toilet facilities, but at Ingersoll park, which is a new park and only partly improved, there are no toilet facilities. There is an excellent well at the camp and fire places.

Rock Island—The tourist camp in Rock Island is maintained by the Kiwanis club in a beautiful grove located on Rock River convenient to all highways leading into the city.

Springfield—The city which Abraham Lincoln loved to call
"my home town" provides splendid facilities for tourists. There are three large camp sites beautifully situated on high and shady ground, all equipped with running water, toilets, fuel and benches. Free tennis, golf, bathing and other recreational facilities are featured. Space is provided for 1,000 cars. Springfield abounds in historical spots and everything possible is done for the comfort of travelers.

Streator—In Streator is to be found one of the most modern tourist camps in the country. It is a mile north of the business section of the city and is connected with the city by a paved street.
The camp is provided with running water, shower baths with hot and cold water always at hand, and toilets. The use of free washing machines which are manufactured in Streator is extended to all tourists and electric stoves are provided for cooking meals. There are two good tennis courts, a baseball diamond and a volley ball field. The Chamber of Commerce maintains a bureau of information for the motoring public.

Shelbyville—This city provides a free camp site for tourists.
The location is in Forest park, which touches the northeast corporate limits of the city.

58-Day Run of 26,165 Miles Without a Stop Proves Hupmobile Stauchness and Reliability

High Opinion of Hupmobile Stamina and Durability
Justified by Its Splendid Condition after Gruelling Test

Perhaps no motor car ever before was given such a reliability test as this.

Day and night for 58 days, without the engine being stopped once, and without the official seals on its hood being broken, a stock Hupmobile was driven 26,165 miles by drivers working in three shifts about Salt Lake City and over a maze of Inter-Mountain highways in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming.

The starter was removed before the run began.
Oil was taken on through a special tube in the side of the sealed hood. This intake for oil, as well as the intakes for gas and water, were all securely sealed, and were broken and re-sealed only under official inspection.

The route of the car, for the most part, was over a maze of mountain highways. Part of the course led the car into the precipitous mountain canyons of Heber, Provo, and Parleys, in the Wasatch range.

The "high spots" of the test included trips into many of the steepest canyons of the west, including Brighton, at the head of Big Cottonwood and American Fork Canyon, generally conceded to be the steepest incline in the west. During the last 14 miles of this trip cars are forced to climb from a 4400 to an 8700-foot elevation.

The engine was brought to a stop only after the fan belt had broken, at 26,165 miles. The car then completed its 60th day with a mileage of 27,096

It was immediately torn down and inspected under direction of Prof. A. LeRoy Taylor of the Automotive Department of the University of Utah. He reported that the engine—with 33,000 miles to its credit—showed only slight wear; that the life of this stock Hupmobile had only just commenced.

Prof. Taylor's detailed report contained the following significant statements:—The amount of carbon deposited on the pistons and cylinder block was surprisingly small.
The pistons showed, by micrometer caliper measurements, the maximum "out of round" of .0005 (five ten thousandth) inch. The second and third rings showed practically no wear. The first rings on three of the cylinders had worn .002 (two thousandth) inch. The crankshaft bearings were in excellent condition and showed practically a perfect fit.

The qualities revealed by the car in this test —its economy records—the way it stood up in continuous service such as not one motor car in ten thousand is asked to give—these things are not remarkable or unusual for the Hupmobile.

They are the daily portion of every Hupmobile owner. He counts upon them confidently. They are his interpretation of reliability.

The Reliability Record

sitated by the breaking of the fan belt. The run was then continued end of 60 days being 27,096, on which the daily average is computed.

I Still Look 20

after 32 years as a star

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Some of you remember me as a famous stage beauty over 30 years ago. Perhaps in "The Girl I Left Behind Me," in "LaBelle Helene," in "Wang," or "Flordora."

Many of you see me now, playing young girls' parts, still looking like a girl in her 'teens.

Thousands of women have asked me the secrets of this perennial youth. I have supplied them to many, and they, like I, have kept their girlish charms.

Now for All Women

Now I am persuaded that I owe this information to all woman-kind. I have obtained, by world-wide search, the best beauty tips in existence. I know they could bring to millions what they have brought to me.

So I have arranged to supply these helps to all who want them—as a duty to my sex. I have had them prepared with the utmost skill, without regard to cost, and they are sold at moderate prices, with small regard to profit.

Thus I hope to bring to girls and matrons everywhere the benefits I got. And no woman could ask for more.

My mother died a girlish beauty at the age of 57. From my earliest years she taught me her secrets. Then together we traveled the beauty-loving world in search of better methods.

We consulted able scientists, beauty specialists and famous beauties everywhere. The search cost us a fortune. But it brought to me and mine, and friends of mine, decades of added youth.

Now those helps are yours if you desire—the best that science knows. And I hope that my results will lead you to employ them.

WHITE YOUTH CLAY

I owe my debutante complexion largely to a superclay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many use today, but a clean, refined clay which dries white. It is based on 20 years of scientific study by the ablest of clay experts.

One who applies it feels the impurities fairly drawn from the skin. All that clogs the skin comes out—the causes of blackheads and blemishes. The blood is brought to the surface. Large pores, lines and wrinkles yield.

Wash it off when it dries, then behold a new complexion, soft and rosy, clear and firm. The results will amaze and delight you. Many women in those 30 minutes seem to drop ten years.

Clay is a beauty essential. No woman looks her best without it. None keeps her youthful bloom. Women who use clay today stand out in any crowd.

Don't use crude and muddy clays, for they will disappoint. Try this supreme creation—the last word in facial clays. It will be a revelation. Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay comes in tubes, at 50c and $1.

FACIAL YOUTH

This is a liquid cleansing cream which I learned about in France. It contains no animal, no vegetable oil, so it cannot assimilate with the skin. It simply cleans to the depths, then departs. All the grime, all that clogs the skin goes with it. I use it night and morning, and whenever else my face needs cleansing.

Compare it with any cleansing cream or any cleansing method. You will be surprised at the extra dirt my Facial Youth removes, and a clean skin is essential to beauty.

The greatest beauty experts in the world now advise this formula for cleansing. But they charge a very high price. Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth sells for 75c per bottle.

YOUTH CREAM

This is my cold cream which I apply at night. Also in day-times as a powder base. Also after every application of my Youth Clay or Facial Youth.

Youth Cream contains both lemon and strawberry. It is the only cream, I believe, which combines these fruit effects.

It softens, whitens, feeds and firms the skin. After its use I awake in the morning blooming like a girl in her 'teens.

In all my many years of searching, I have never found a cold cream to compare with this. Nor has any woman whom I know. Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream costs 60c per jar.

HAIR YOUTH

My hair is my greatest glory. It is thick, silky, lustrous and grows finer every year. Before I bobbed it, it fell below my knees.

I have never had falling hair or dandruff, and never a touch of gray. Nor has any friend who uses my formula. Nor had mother, who found this formula in France. She died at 57 with hair like mine today.

This is due to my hair youth. I apply it daily with an eye-dropper—just enough to dampen the scalp. This method does not muss the hair.

Hair Youth daily combats the hardened oil and dandruff which stifles the hair's growth. It stimulates and fertilizes the hair roots from which come hair health and hair color.

Look at my luxuriant hair. Then use what I used to get it. Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth costs 50c and $1, with eye dropper.

Every store around you which sells toilet articles, supplies my preparations.

READ MORE BOOKS

"The Snare," by Rafael Salatin as reviewed by G. R. Poage. This historical romance by its setting and its opening episode irresistibly recalls that old-fashioned favorite "Charles O'Malley," but there the resemblance ceases. In its small group of characters, its unity, its intensity, its emphasis on psychological processes, "The Snare" is thoroughly modern. While its chief interest is of course in its plot, that plot essentially depends upon the characterization. Aside from the dependence on coincidence inevitable in this type of story, it is by no means improbable and most cleverly constructed, while it is developed with consummate artistry. It is immeasurably better than the same author's "Captain Blood," which is only a "penny dreadful" written by a man of letters. As either historical romance or mystery story, "The Snare" is the best the reviewer has read in many a day. Even to hint at the plot would spoil it all for the reader.

High-Pressure Oiling— 2 Gallons a Minute!

LUBRICATION is life—in motors. Because it defeats wear and vibration. Jewett has a hollow crankshaft, high-pressure system, forcing 2 gallons of oil per minute to all main and connecting rod bearings, and spraying the entire internal mechanism. Metal never rubs against metal in a Jewett motor—a thin film of oil safeguards bearings.

The results of such ideal lubrication are real smoothness and decided silence. Further, the continuous oil-stream tends to keep bearings cool, and Jewett takes long distances at high speed, climbs continued grades, or trudges soft roads, without overheating. You know what happens to cars equipped with circulating and splash lubrication, under like conditions. Let us show you the Jewett! You try to overheat it.

HISTORICAL SKETCH of the Union Printers Home A Noble and Unique Trade Union Institution

The International Typographical union has the reputation of being one of the best and most conservatively managed among labor organizations. It is also one of the oldest of union organizations and because of its record and policies has retained public confidence in large degree.

The Jacksonville union was chartered December 4, 1899, and has continued in prosperous condition through the years. A number of the charter members are still identified with the union. The membership roll shows the following charter members: Daniel Shields, John Thompson, W. H. Wickham, Joseph E. Fish, William Hammond, E. O. Mayer, C. L. Carpenter, W. A. Whitely, W. H. Clifford, A. W. Konrad, B. F. Oliverman, M. H. Davis, W. S. Camp, E. B. Keller, A. L. Wood, F. W. Paradise, George Swales, B. Heibach, and W. D. Doying. Several years ago W. L. Fay was elected an honorary member. F. W. Paradise, one of the charter members is now on the retired list.

The following story about the magnificent home for sick and aged printers, the International Union has long maintained at Colorado Springs is taken from a booklet issued by the International Union:

In May, 1857, the first proposition to establish a home, or asylum, for invalid, aged or infirm union printers, was made to the International Typographical Union at its session in New Orleans, La. The proposition, however, did not meet with serious consideration and was dropped until 1880, when it was again discussed, but no action taken. Ten years elapsed when the question was renewed at the eighteenth annual session, held in Cincinnati in 1870, but the delegates of the International Typographical Union deemed the measure impracticable. Similar action was taken in 1877, and the subject was lost sight of until the session of 1882, when a committee was appointed to consider the advisability of devising ways and means for the maintenance of a home for disabled union printers, on the plan of the National Soldiers' Homes. Nothing came of this action, and the consummation of the project seemed as far off as ever, until George W. Childs and A. J. Drexel presented the International Typographical Union with a check for $10,000, at the thirty-fourth annual session, held in Pittsburgh in 1896. The gift was accepted and the disposition thereof was referred to a special committee of five.

At the next session of the International Typographical Union, held in Buffalo in 1897, the trustees of the fund reported $11,620.04 in their possession. At this meeting, S. J. Triplett, of Austin, Texas, presented an offer from mayor and council of that city, in which they agreed to donate seven acres of ground, provided the International Typographical Union would erect thereon a Home for sick and indigent printers.

Thus the matter went over to the Denver convention of 1899, before which Will Lambert appeared and asked that the Home be established in Austin. In addition to the proposition of Mr. Lambert, four others were presented. One of the most important being that of Charles S. Semper, of Semper, Jefferson County, Colo., who proffered the International Typographical Union eighty acres of land, nine miles north of Denver, for a home; but the proposition made by Louis R. Ehrlich, of "Colorado Springs, Colo., was the most popular. On behalf of the board of trade of this city, Mr. Ehrlich offered to deed to the International Typographical Union eighty acres of land one mile east of Colorado Springs, conditioned:

That the International Typographical Union would commence the erection of a Home on said tract within two years, to cost not less than $20,000.00, and to be completed within one year from date of commencement.

Mr. Ehrlich addressed the convention at length on the subject of locating the Home at Colorado Springs. He directed attention to the fact that the leading physicians of the country had agreed in characterizing Colorado Springs as the most perfect sanatorium for the cure of all forms of throat and lung diseases—diseases which printers were especially liable—and urged that the establishment of such a home, in the highway of transcontinental travel, would naturally attract the attention of many wealthy and charitably disposed citizens, and prove a source of strength and influence to the International Typographical Union.

At the conclusion of Mr. Ehrlich's remarks, a resolution recommending "that a committee of three be appointed consisting of the president, second vice-president and secretary-treasurer, to arrange the details, to formally accept the proposition, and to take such legal steps as may be necessary in connection therewith," was adopted.

Pursuant to the provisions of this resolution, the committee proceeded to carry out its instructions, and on June 22, 1899, an agreement for the transfer of the land was entered into between the committee, as trustees of the International Typographical Union, and A. A. McGowney and F. L. Martin, the latter gentlemen representing the board of trade of Colorado Springs. The question of finally accepting the proposition was voted upon by the membership of the International Typographical Union in the fall of 1899, and the action of the Denver convention was ratified by a vote of 4,828 to 1,332, only about one-third of the members voting.

Contributions From Members Solicited

At the Denver convention the sum of $21,659.45 was reported in the hands of the trustees of the fund. The convention having made no provision for the raising of additional money to erect a Home, an appeal for voluntary contributions, to be applied toward the building of the institution, was immediately issued to the members, in which it was stated that under the terms of the gift it would be necessary to commence the erection of a building by June 22, 1891. The appeal was responded to by many unions and members, and at the time of the meeting of the Atlanta convention in 1890, the contributions amounted to $4,199.55, which was turned over to the Home corporation, the creation of which was authorized at this session.

The Atlanta convention also ordered the Childs-Drexel fund transferred to the new board of trustees of the Home to be used for building and maintenance; that a per capita tax of $1.00 be levied, collectible at the rate of 10 cents per month, to be applied to the Home fund; and that the board of trustees should have power to regulate and determine the uses and purposes of the Home. On September 24, 1890, the trustees filed articles of incorporation in the office of the Secretary of State of Colorado.

Home Building Decided Upon

At a meeting of the board of trustees, on November 19, 1890, it was determined to build a $50,000.00 edifice, and a building committee was appointed to have charge of the work. On March 17, 1891, this committee awarded the contract for the main building at a cost of about $60,000.00. A recommendation that an assessment of 10 cents per month, be levied on the membership, to be applied to the building and maintenance of the Home, was submitted to the Boston session of the International Typographical Union, in 1891, by the trustees, and was adopted by the convention. It was further decided that the anniversary of the birthday of George W. Childs, May 12, 1892, should be celebrated by the dedication of the Home.

The Dedication

As previously noted, May 12, 1892, was set aside for the dedication of the Home. The city of Colorado Springs was crowded with people from all parts of Colorado, and many distant points. The trades unions and civic societies joined in a monster parade through the city, after which they adjourned to the Home, where the visitors were received by a committee of ladies from Denver and Colorado Springs. The exercises were held in the open space in front of the main building. Vice President Amerson, of the board of trustees, opened with a short address, and was followed by Rev. James E. Gregg with a fervent prayer of dedication. The Colorado Springs band and the Pueblo Cowboy Band rendered several selections, after which Governor Rout, of Colorado, was introduced. His speech was brief but appropriate. Following him came Mayor Ira G. Sprague, of Colorado Springs, who delivered a short address, in which he paid a high tribute to the printer and his work, and extended a cordial welcome to all strangers present. James McKenna, first vice president of the International Typographical Union, responded to the mayor's address of welcome. The most conspicuous figure on the platform, Mr. George W. Childs, was then introduced. Cheers greeted his introduction and followed the conclusion of his talk. Leon Hartigan, a Creede printer, read a special prepared poem by Eugene H. Munday, the poet printer. August Donath gave an interesting history of the Home, and was succeeded by Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, of New Hampshire, an old typo, who delivered the principal oration of the day. Short talks were made by Mr. Cappeller, president of the National Editorial Association, and Bishop McLaren. Letters were received and read from John G. Whittier, George W. Curtis, and the acting editor-in-chief of the New York World, expressing good wishes. The benediction by Dean A. R. Keifer, of Grace Church, Colorado Springs, fittingly closed the services of the day, after which the building was opened for inspection.

Colorado Springs, where the Home is located, is a city over 30,000 inhabitants, situated upon a plateau about 6,000 feet above the sea. Electric cars will take you to the mountains only a few miles away. The charms and fascinations of the surrounding mountain scenery have furnished a theme for many pens. Who has not heard of Pike's Peak, of Manitou, with its health-giving springs and picturesque villas, of the Garden of the Gods, Glen Eyrie, and Cheyenne Canon? All these and many more are close at hand, affording a never-failing delight at each visit. Medicinal springs, with healing waters, bubble up amid the foothills, and a light, dry atmosphere, with an abundance of clear weather and brilliant sunshine, has been and is doing wonders for the thousands of invalids who seek health and life in this vicinity.

The Home Site.

On a commanding eminence, overlooking Colorado Springs and the surrounding plains, stand the Home buildings. They face the West, and from this point we have a panoramic view of the Rocky Mountains from Castle Rock on the North to the Spanish Peaks on the south, a distance of one hundred and twenty miles. To the west the land slopes down to the city, and to the south-west to Prospect Lake. To the south and east the land inclines to a dry creek. The soil is dry and loose, but produces abundantly when properly irrigated.

On each side of the driveway, extending from the gateway to the main building—a distance of 650 feet—there is a broad cement walk, bordering it and surrounding the Home are lawns comprising an area of twelve acres. These lawns abound in flowers, shrubs and trees, maple and elm alternating in front and along the driveway.

The Main Building is of white lava stone, with red sandstone trimmings. The main edifice is 200 feet long by 50 feet wide, with a wing to the rear of the north end 90 by 50 feet. Porches extend from the wing to the south end of the building on the first and second stories, affording easy access to any part of the building from the rear. Each story contains a central hall the entire length of the building, every room opening into the main hallway, in addition to having outer windows. During the year 1914 the south wing of the main building was remodeled and is used exclusively for hospital purposes, giving thirty additional beds for afflicted residents. Sleeping porches were built on the east side of this portion of the building, so that patients may be placed in the open air when weather permits, which is practically all the time in the Colorado climate. In addition to these changes, an automatic electric passenger elevator was installed for the convenience of the residents and visitors; also an automatic electric dumb waiter, was provided. The attic was remodeled and divided into twenty-six bright, sunny rooms, providing pleasant sleeping quarters for the female employees. The old-fashioned dormers were replaced by larger and more artistic ones, adding to the attractiveness of the building.

In 1917 the main building was further enlarged by the erection of a new addition which connects the old south wing with the hospital annex. This addition has thirty-five sleeping rooms, those on the east side of the building being arranged with sleeping porches for patients who are required to remain in bed a considerable portion of their time. On the ground floor is located the general dining room for sanatorium patients with a seating capacity for 170. Diet kitchens are located in convenient places on the upper floors and are used for nurses for preparing nourishment, palatable drinks, etc. for bed patients. East of and connecting with the main dining room is a large kitchen from which all food is served for sanatorium patients. This addition is well lighted and ventilated, and all fixtures and furnishings are the last word in sanitation. The exterior of the new addition is of material and design which conform to the original main building.

A broad stone stairway, protected by heavy balustrades, leads up to the massive archway of the portico. From the vestibule the open portals of the main entrance invite to spacious parlors, reception rooms and chambers on either side of the main hall. Above the portico, in the second-story cap course of sandstone, in raised Gothic letters, are the words "Union Printers Home," while on either side, throughout the front elevation, suitable carrying ornaments the exterior. The inside finish is of white pine, except the stair way which is white oak, with carved panels. The building contains one hundred and ninety rooms, including kitchens, pantries, cold-storage rooms, dining rooms, closets, store-rooms, etc., being on the basement floor.

The Sanatorium Building

Tuberculosis being one of the diseases to which printers are especially liable, it is not surprising that the ravages of the disease caused many to seek shelter and care at the Home. This class of residents began increasing early in 1893, and at the Louisville session of the International Typographical Union in 1894, it was reported by the superintendent that the authorities of the State of Colorado were contemplating the enactment of a law to compel the segregation of tubercular institutions such as the Home. The erection of a hospital was suggested, but the convention failed to take any action on the subject. In the report of the executive committee of the Home trustees to the Colorado Springs convention in 1896, the hospital proposition was taken up and the advisability of such a building discussed. As a result of this action by the committee, the following resolution was unanimously adopted by the convention:

"That an assessment of 50 cents on each member in the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union shall be levied to provide funds to build a hospital annex to the Union Printers Home, said assessment to be due and payable on Christmas day, December 25, and forwarded to the secretary-treasurer on or before February 1, 1897."

This resolution was at once submitted to the membership and resulted in its endorsement. When the result of the vote became known, a great rivalry as to which should be the first to pay the assessment was manifested by local unions, and though none of the money was due until December 25, 1896, a number of local bodies sent in their contributions previous to that date, so as to make their offerings in truth a Christmas gift. The assessment was rapidly paid, and the trustees lost no time in arranging for the building of the sanatorium.

The hospital building was located just south of the main structure, covering a space of 50x90 feet, and was originally but two stories in height. The demands for admission to this building having outgrown its capacity, the board of trustees, at its annual meeting in September, 1902, decided to increase the number of rooms by adding another story. The architects who designed the original buildings were instructed to prepare plans for the new addition and to carry out the general scheme of the lower stories. This method was followed and work was commenced on the improvement early in January, 1903, and completed in April of the same year. The architecture of the hospital is in keeping with that of the main building, the superstructure being of Castle Rock lava stone.

Gateway at Entrance to Ground

The magnificent stone gateway at the entrance to the grounds consists of a central elliptical arch, 12 feet, 9 inches wide by 13 feet, 4 inches high, for vehicles, with a half circle arch on each side, 5 feet wide by 8 feet high, for pedestrians. Between the center and side arches are heavy piers, 3 feet 9 inches square and 19 feet 6 inches high. Smaller piers are erected on the sides, with a curved wrought-iron railing. The driveway is furnished with double wrought-iron gates, the side gates being of similar material.

The face of the central archstones bears the inscription, in gilded letters: "Union Printers Home—Erected and Maintained by the International Typographical Union," and the inside of the arch bears the inscription in similar letters: "Union Printers Home—Its Bounty Unpurchasable." The date of erection of the Home—A. D. 1891—is placed over the side arches. Light is provided from ornamental wrought-iron electric lamps, placed on each side of the large piers. An ornamental iron fence extends some 450 feet on either side of the gateway. This improvement, which was completed in 1901, cost about $1,600.00.

Supported By Membership

Many people suppose that the expenses of the Home are defrayed by endowments. Such is not the case. Since the original gift of Messrs. Child and Drexel, the Home has received gifts aggregating but $9,020.60.

Since its completion, all expenses of the Home, including cost of maintenance, have been paid from money contributed by the members of the International Typographical Union, the revenue being provided by setting apart a certain portion of the monthly contributions to the Union. At first an assessment of 10 cents per member per month, in addition to the International Typographical Union per capita tax, was levied for the support of the Home, but the Philadelphia session of the International combined the Home assessment of 10 cents and the monthly per capita tax of 15 cents, classing the two as per capita tax, and crediting 20 per cent of the amount, or 5 cents per month per member, to the Home's support. This prevailed until March 1897, when the increasing demands on the Home made an increase in revenue necessary, and a new law requiring 30 cents per capita tax per month, went into effect, the Home receiving one-third of the amount, or 10 cents per month per member. This revenue proved inadequate for the needs of the Home, and on March 1, 1908, the monthly contribution of each member was increased to 15 cents. On January 1, 1916, this amount was increased to 20 cents per month, and on January 1, 1921, it was further increased to 30 cents, at which figure it now stands.

During the year ended May 31, 1921, the expenditures from the Home fund were $191,887.97. Included in this amount is all money paid for improvements and repairs on the buildings and grounds, farming expenses, insurance, food supplies, clothing, pensions, medical attendance, transportation of residents who vacate, burials, salaries of employees and officers, printing, and the expense of meetings of the board of trustees. Deducting $8,998.68 expended in building operations and receipts from the sale of supplies and transportation refunded, the net cost of maintenance is found to be $182,889.29, or $887.81 per year; $73.33 per month for each resident. When it is remembered that this sum covers all expenses in connection with the up-keep of the Home property and the care of its patients in a manner not excelled, if equalled, in any similar institution, the cost will not appear excessive.

From the opening of the Home in July, 1892, to May 31, 1921, 2,564 applicants have been admitted to the Home. Any member of the International Typographical Union who has been such for ten years, three of which are continuous, is eligible for admission to the Home. Members suffering from tuberculosis are eligible for admission at any time after eighteen months' membership. Application for admission to the Home must be made upon forms provided by the trustees, be endorsed by the local union with which the applicant is affiliated, and set forth his physical condition at date of application. If passed upon favorably by the admission committee, a certificate of admission is issued by the secretary of the board, which certificate must be presented to the superintendent by the applicant upon arrival at the Home.

The average number of residents during the fiscal year 1921 was 206.

Enlargement of the Home

Last October, at the annual session of the board of trustees of the Union Printers Home, it was decided that additions should be made to the institution at Colorado Springs that would provide for the care of incurable cases and members who had heretofore been deprived of the benefits of the Home because of the nature of their disabilities.

For the purpose of bringing this plan to fruition it was taken up by the finance committee of the board, composed of President McFarland, Secretary-Treasurer Hays and Vice-President McCaffery, at a meeting at the Home on April 18 and 19. The committee made a definite decision in the matter and it was later ratified by the membership of the full board. The addition will be a four-story structure and cost approximately $175,000. Work has already been started on this new building.

WILL MAKE FOURTH EFFORT TO SAVE C. P.

Conference Called for Monday by Peoria Chamber of Commerce—Will Resist Any Effort to Tear up Tracks.

Patrons of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Railroad will embark upon another effort Monday to save this road threatened abandonment, according to a story in the Chicago Journal of Commerce. The new drive has been started by R. M. Field, business manager of the Peoria Association of Commerce, who has broadcasted a call for a Peoria conference. What program will be adopted by the sponsors of the meeting to lead to the solution of the carrier's difficulties has not been definitely decided, it was said. It is hoped that some feasible line of action will be evolved.

James H. Kirby of Petersburg, Ill., former state representative, will probably attend the meeting. Mr. Kirby is known to have been working on a plan to test the validity of the title to the road's right of way and the other real estate.

Tearing up Tracks Opposed.

He has declared that if the line is merely abandoned and the rolling stock taken over by the creditors, there will be no organized resistance. However, if an attempt is made to tear up the rails and ties and to remove buildings from the right of way legal action will be taken at once.

The call for the meeting sent out by the Peoria Association of Commerce to Illinois municipalities, is as follows:

"We in Peoria have decided to hold an open forum meeting of the Association of Commerce on Monday, May 21, at the Jefferson Hotel, at a 12 o'clock luncheon.

We have invited Chairman Frank L. Smith of the Illinois Commerce Commission; Congressman W. E. Hull of Peoria; Henry T. Rainey of Carrollton; State Senator John Dalley and others to address the meeting, and doubtless in addition there will be short talks by many of those interested. I am sending invitations to the mayors and chambers of commerce of the towns and cities on the line north of Springfield, and we hope to have a very good meeting.

City Delegations Invited.

"I hope you can arrange to come and bring a delegation from your city, and if you know anyone on the line south of Springfield who would be interested, please communicate with them. We want your co-operation as your municipality is vitally interested, the same as Peoria is, and there has been a spirit of apathy that should not exist in many of these cities.

"People who are actually vitally interested have apparently given nothing more than a casual thought to this proposition, which means millions of dollars to Illinois cities on the line of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis.

"I wish you would get busy in regard to this with your people, and let me know how many will come. Your co-operation will be appreciated."

HANDY WITH THEIR FISTS

Journalism of First Half of Nineteenth Century Had Its Full Supply of Thrills.

In the first half of the Nineteenth century it was the custom of editors to engage in mud-slinging to a large extent. Horace Greeley, James Gordon Bennett, James Watson Webb, William Cullen Bryant, and others did not hesitate to attack each other physically as well as verbally. On one occasion Bennett was knocked down in the street by Webb, and Bennett retaliated by writing up the occurrence in his paper, the New York Herald, in the following fashion:

"The fellow, no doubt, wanted to let out the never-failing supply of good humor and wit which has created such a reputation for the Herald, and appropriate the contents to supply the emptiness of his own thick skull. He did not succeed, however, in ridding me of my ideas. He has not injured my skull. My ideas in a few days will flow as freely as ever and he will find out to his cost."

Another assault by Webb occurred a little later, and was reported in similar style, ending with the statement: "As to intimidating me or changing my course, the thing cannot be done. I tell the honest truth in my paper and leave the consequences to God. Could I leave them in better hands?"

NO NEED FOR TIMETABLE

Residents of English Village Had Their Own Methods of Keeping Tracks of Trains.

The village inn in Essex where I took tea the other evening is only two miles from a railway station, but my request for a timetable created a mild excitement. The maiden who waited on me referred the matter to the landlord, who appeared in person. "I've got a timetable somewhere, sir," he said, "but I don't rightly know where to lay my hand on it. Anyhow, it's a bit old—1912 or thereabouts."

"Well," I said, "perhaps you can tell me how the trains go."

"Lizzie," he called out, "what was that train old George went up by last Tuesday?"

Voice from the kitchen—"I dunno. He left hers just after dinner, and then he had to call up at the mill on the way."

"Oh, ah, so he did. Well, there used to be one about half after 2. You know that one Mrs. Rogers caught when she went to see her son in the 'orsepital'."

It was then 5:30 p. m., so I slipped out and tramped to the station. I missed Mrs. Rogers' train, but I must have caught old George's, for there appeared to be only two running.—Windsor Magazine.

He Found Out.

An old Yarmouth fisherman settled in the east end of London. On looking over his grocer's bill he occasionally found charges like the following: "To ¼ lb. tea—to ¼ lb. ditto."

"Wife," said he, "this 'ere's a putty business; I should like to know what you have done with so much of this here ditto."

"Ditto, ditto," replied the old lady. "Never had a pound of it in the house in my life!"

So back went the ex-fisherman in high dudgeon that he should have been charged for things he had never received.

"Mr. Brown," he said, "I shan't stand this. Wife says she hasn't had a pound of ditto in the house in her life."

The tradesman thereupon explained the meaning of the term and the old man went home satisfied.

His wife inquired if he had discovered what ditto meant.

"Yes," he said. "It means that I am an old fool and you're ditto."—London Tit-Bits.

Proved His Capacity.

Jefferson Boyce enjoyed a local reputation as an eater of no mean dimensions, and on numerous occasions had won wagers on his capacity and endurance. One day a friend offered to bet that he could not down 36 doughnuts at one sitting. "Never tested my ability on doughnuts," said Jeff, "but I'll just take a chance to the extent of $5. Stakes were put up and the contest was scheduled to take place at Pete's Original Coffee house at 6 p. m. About five o'clock Jeff hunted up his challenger. "Say, you don't want to make that bet $20?" he queried. "Hub!" You must think you've got a cinch on this!" "That's what I have," rejoined Jeff; "I've just got through making a test."

PREMATURE REMOVAL THREATENS EXPERIMENT

EVANSTON.—(By A. P.)—

Premature removal of Chinese plants and trees threatens the successful experiment in their American culture now being made by Prof. Charles B. Atwell of the department of botany at Northwestern university, on a plot in the botanical garden of the college. The only obstacle in fostering their growth, Prof. Atwell says, is that trespassers apparently are more anxious to realize on the results of the experiments than himself, the specimens frequently being "lifted."

Professor Atwell believes that if the plants can be adapted to our climate and transplantation to American soil, they will add beautiful foliage to the landscape work on lawns, parks and gardens. The plants now are imported by scientific explorers sent out by the bureau of plant industry of the U. S. department of agriculture especially for this purpose. The experimental station here is but one of many in various parts of the country.

The rare specimens of these foreign trees are the hackberry, from the province of Homan, China; the Chinese juniper, which remains green the year around, a hybrid pear, a cross between the common pear and a Chinese variety, and a bush cherry, which comes from Tientsin, and is an ornamental fruit bearing shrub with white flowers tinged with rose. This cherry is grafted upon the wild peach thus making a more vigorous growth and withstanding draught better than if grown upon its own roots. The fruit, according to Professor Atwell, is suitable for preserves and jelly.

The Chinese hackberry, the experimenter explained, is a close relative of our American hackberry and distantly related to the American elm. It reaches a height of 30 feet and in due time should have orange red, edible fruits, Professor Atwell said. Then there are the sweet gum from Nanking, a tree attaining 130 feet in height and which the Chinese are said to use for making tea chests; and a Chinese maple, a small tree with three lobed leaves, shiny and dark green with flowers in clusters.

C. & A. FIREMAN HURT

Harry Stevens, fireman on the Chicago and Alton, is a patient at the Passavant hospital, the victim of rather an unusual accident.

The large iron hoe, that is part of an engine equipment, used to clean the fires, and weighing about 30 pounds, fell from its rack striking Mr. Stevens directly on the head.

He was brought to the Passavant hospital, and Dr. C. E. Black found that he had a severe bruise on the head but is not able to determine as yet the full extent of injury.

RURAL DISTRICTS BEHIND IN HEALTH

SPRINGFIELD.—(By A. P.)—

Health activities in rural Illinois are absolutely inadequate, Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, director of the state department of health, declared in urging passage of senate bill No. 343, providing for county health boards.

This bill was introduced by Senator Glackin. It would authorize county authorities "to establish and maintain a county public health department and to levy and collect a tax to pay the cost of establishment and maintenance of same."

The bill gives the county board power to levy a tax not to exceed two mills on the dollar annually, the fund derived from such tax to be used to maintain health centers and other auxiliary institutions for the prevention, isolation, quarantine and hospitalization of persons afflicted with communicable diseases.

It further provides, in case the county health department plan is adopted, "that the board of directors shall have the power to provide and pay for medical and nursing school inspection service and to do all other things legal and necessary for the prevention and control of communicable disease and the discovery and correction of physical and dental defects of school children, the establishment of prenatal, infant, preschool and child hygiene activities and do such other public health work and activities as is necessary to provide a safe milk and water supply and adequate sanitary and laboratory facilities."

UNCLE SAM MAKES MONEY ON OLD SHIP BARGAIN SALE

Manila.—The United States army made more than $22,000 on the sale of four army vessels during the week by refusing first bids and advertising a second time.

The old transport, Lizeum, which was sold to a lumber company, brought $43,792, while the first bid was only $30,170. The tug General Weeks and General Lawton and a quartermaster scow brought a total of $28,000, as a result of the second advertisement for bids, which brought approximately $10,000 more than the first bids. The sale of these vessels was a final cleanup of salvaged material in the Philippines department.

Final approval of the sale must be made by the war department at Washington, but officers of the salvage division here believe the figures will be accepted.

DR. HARKER OBSERVES 30TH ANNIVERSARY

June Next Will Round Out His Thirtieth Year of Service as President of the College—M.
E. Board Pay Tribute

(From M. E. Education Board Bulletin)

In June of this year, President Joseph H. Harker will round out his thirtieth year of administration at Illinois Woman's college, and, incidentally, set a record for continuous service in a Methodist college. He now finds himself in the position of a man who has "seen many things begun"—and most of them done, with characteristic energy is celebrating the occasion by planning even greater things for this pioneer woman's college.

When Dr. Harker accepted the presidency in 1893, the college owned property worth only $60,000. Centrally located in one of the most populous districts of the Middle West, and endowed with the active interest of the people of the state, it possessed tremendous possibilities. It had no capital or endowment, but needed only skillful guidance to step into the stride of educational progress.

After several years of constant effort, Dr. Harker's labors were rewarded by a gift of $25,000 from the Carnegie Foundation. This sum proved to be the starting point in the financial history of the college. From this modest beginning, the capital of the institution has risen steadily, totalling $510,349 in 1922. The campus has kept pace with the increasing demands of the students. It now takes in over six acres on which are located six modern and commodious buildings. The most imposing of these is Harker Hall, which was built in 1909 at a cost of $70,000.

Dr. Harker's life has been interesting and thrilling. He was born in the County of Durham, England, and came to this country at the age of eighteen to seek his fortune. He arrived in Duquoin, an Illinois mining town on a Friday, and by the following Monday was at work in a coal mine. The coal mines operated only two or three days during the summer, leaving him with several days unoccupied. In his leisure time he began to study, devouring an arithmetic book and a physical geography until he knew them from cover to cover.

Then he went to the County Superintendent of Schools and asked him if he would help by answering questions for him once a week. The superintendent consented, and so began a strange schooling. When he was twenty, a vacancy on the faculty of a Negro school was offered him. This step opened the way to greater opportunities, and the next few years saw him filling several exacting teaching positions. In 1889 he became Professor of Pedagogy at Illinois college, remaining in this capacity until 1893 when he accepted the presidency of Illinois Woman's college.

WILL OBSERVE 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Fortieth Anniversary of Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be Celebrated in Chicago in September

Chicago.—The fortieth anniversary of the birth of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be celebrated in the home of its founding here September 19-23, in an international convention to be held at the University of Chicago, according to announcement just made. The convention plan "to bring together men and boys of the Episcopal church for the purpose of increasing their interest and usefulness in spreading the Kingdom of Christ."

Inspired by a small group of men under the leadership of the late James L. Houghteling at St. James Parish, Chicago, in 1883, the spirit of the Brotherhood today is found in organizations in England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the West Indies, besides most parishes throughout the United States. Distinguished leaders of the church from every diocese in the American church representatives from abroad will speak at the convention.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew was adopted as the name because St. Andrew exemplified what these young members of a bible class planned to do. Mr. Houghteling's idea of the responsibility of churchmen three years led to the holding of a convention to consider formation of a national brotherhood. The organization never was intended to be large in membership or international in scope. Its challenge, however, soon resulted in organization throughout the world.

The organization, since its birth has been and always will be the heart of a movement to spiritually vitalize the man and boy power of the church", according to Countenay Barber of Chicago, chairman of the convention committee. The national body has held thirty-seven conferences, none of which is restricted to members of the brotherhood, but to all church men and boys. Boys between the ages of 12 and 18 are organized into a Junior chapter, a conference for whom will be held at the same time.

Vessel room was chartered to 150,000 bushels to Georgian Bay. Oats closed 1/2c easier. Premiums were unchanged to 1/2c lower. Cash sales here were 35,000 bushels. PRODUCE MARKET REVIEW

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, in its report of May 15, shows the following information on the holdings of eggs:

May 1, 1923—3,710,000 cases.
May 1, 1922—4,648,000 cases.
5-yr. average—3,585,000 cases.

It will be noted there was a shortage compared to last year, but the holdings were above the 5-year average.

Buyers have been unwilling to store eggs at the high prices prevailing throughout April and early May, and as receipts have shown some increases, the market has worked to a lower basis. Prices are generally lower in the country than a few weeks back. Deliveries of cream to the creameries during the week show a reasonable increase, although a little below the volume delivered the same week last year. This is accounted for by the backward season. Production for the first four months of the year exceeded that of the same period a year ago and undoubtedly the make will increase rapidly from now on and equal or exceed last year's figures.

The butter market is closing a little easier. Chicago 90 score Standards being quoted at 41 cents, as compared with 42 cents a week ago and 34 1-2 cents a year ago.

Undergrade butter is hardest to sell, and as the supply is increasing there will be a greater difference between top and lower scores. It is important that producers realize that to bring top prices, butter must score at least 90 points. Better care of cream on the farm, thorough cleansing of creamery utensils, especially the separator and milk cans after each using, and frequent marketing will enable manufacturers to market better butter, and in turn, affect the prices paid for butter.

Receipts of live poultry are about normal for the season and there is little change in the market on either live or dressed stock.

The total stocks of frozen poultry reported by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture May 1 were:

1923 74,748,000 lbs.
1922 50,840,000 lbs.

Excess 23,908,000 lbs.

This year's broilers are reaching the market in increasing quantities and the price tendency is lower. It will be noted there is still a large supply of 1922 poultry in storage to be marketed, and until this is used, or at least stocks greatly reduced, it will have a tendency to affect prices for the new crop.

TO A HUMMING-BIRD

Rose-jewel, radiant as a dawn
Of Orient,
From Heaven's girdle cast upon
The firmament—

Blithe herald of the sun's rebirth
And enterprise,
What flowers tempt you down to earth,
When winter dies?

From lower gulf to Hudson's bay,
A feathered spark
Of free intelligence, you play
A rhythmic arc.

No fear of limits moves you from
Your path to stray,
As in the face of law you hum
Your meteor way.

In you the tropic genius bred
Prevails, a fire
As valiant as the ruby-red
Of your attire.

Defiant, chivalrous, you meet
Your rival's thrust,
To die, but not to bide defeat
In honor's dust.

Or like the Prophet's burial urn
Sustained in air,
You sip with witching unconcern
Your midget fare

From trumpet flacons, dainty sweets
In perfumed well,
Or brave my hand for dulcet treats
Of hydromel.

Proud elf to have traversed the sphere
On shallow breath,
No elemental scourge to fear,
Not even death!

—JOHN KEARNS.

WHITE HALL

White Hall, May 19.—There was a large attendance of Masons at the advancement of Vergil C. Thurman to full membership in the blue lodge Thursday night. The work was under the direction of Coston Clemmons of Milton, who was accompanied by Neil Allen. Mr. Thurman is a very prominent young man, being identified with various movements that are incalculating a civic pride so necessary to the "I will" spirit, and it was fitting that he should be accorded special honor on this occasion. Irl Bowman and Mr. McEvers were down from Alsey.

Rev. E. L. James of Monroe, Iowa, pastor of the Baptist church is spending a couple of weeks with his mother, Mrs. Martha James, who is 83 years of age and in good health. Rev. Mr. James will remain until after Decoration Day.

Word from Jersey City is to the effect that W. P. Garabrant, recently identified with the motive power department of the eastern region of the Pennsylvania railroad, and who visits White Hall annually, is arranging for a couple of photographs for the proposed railroad exhibit in the new library. The pictures will show the latest steam locomotive in comparison with the first ones used on that road.

The thing that Mr. Garabrant desires to bring out is the type of engine of the days when W. P. Strunk, now a retired engineer on the C. & A. at Roodhouse, was running on the Pennsylvania lines out of Altoona, Penn., back in the late fifties. Mr. Garabrant expects to be able to do this in research of the railroad antiquities of his father, one of the Pennsylvania engineers of the days of W. P. Strunk, when the late Andrew Carnegie was dispatching trains at Altoona. E. S. Nichols of Roodhouse, dean of C. & A. conductors, says he will participate in the proposed exhibit when the proper time comes. G. V. Darnielle, train dispatcher at Beardstown, has already furnished a train order book of 1887, when they were running conductors wild instead of the present method of running engines extra, the contribution coming through Shirley Nesbit, private secretary of the chief train dispatcher at Beardstown. The foundation of the proposed exhibit will be furnished by Russell Floyd and Lee Whiteside, sons of William Whiteside, residing west of the city, who have constructed a passenger train, with engine, track and signals, which will be displayed as a miniature train of the later type. The engine will run on its own steam. They also have a freight train of their own making that is available if room can be found for it.

C. W. Richardson was among the visitors from Virginia Saturday.

Market Report

By The Associated Press

WHEAT TENDED DOWNWARD IN PRICE

CHICAGO, May 19.—Wheat tended downward in price today chiefly as a result of seasonable weather and of stock market weakness. The close was unsettled, 1 to 3c net lower, with July $1.15 1/2 to $1.15 1/4 and September $1.14.

Corn lost 1/2 to 3/4c and oats 1/2 to 1/4c. In provisions the outcome varied from a shade decline to 5c advance.

Price setbacks began to appear as soon as the wheat market opened, and at no time was there any decided rally. Bullish reports on Kansas crop conditions failed to act as a stimulus, inasmuch as the reports as a rule were unaccompanied by orders to purchase. Little doubt seemed to be left that the Kansas yield per acre judged by the present status of the crop, would be smaller than was expected a while ago. Nevertheless with warmth and sunshine again general throughout the wheat belt and with securities registering new low price records for the year, buyers of wheat seemed to prefer temporarily an attitude of reserve.

Although the fact that Russia after a lapse of several years has resumed export shipments of wheat continued to attract notice here, bulls urged that the amounts were too small to have any material influence on the market. It was pointed out that Russian exports before the war averaged 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels a year, a weekly total of $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 bushels. In contrast with such amounts the Russian shipments this week were reported as having aggregated only 40,000 bushels.

Corn and oats were easier in sympathy with wheat. Some selling of corn resulted from gossip that rural offerings of corn to St. Louis had enlarged a little. Provisions reflected steadiness of hog values.

Last Chance for Hard Luck Bill

By JOHN PALMER

Bill Hicks was the unluckiest fellow in this whole section of the country. No matter what he did, something turned out wrong.

Trade? Well, he started life as a painter, only he fell off a scaffolding and broke his hand, and the bones never set properly, so he couldn't hold his brush for the delicate strokes; so that was the end of that.

Then he took the civil service examinations and was made a postman, and he hadn't been at the job two months before he slipped on the ice and broke his leg, and that never set proper, neither. So they give him a small pension and let him go.

Then Bill opened a general store with a little money he inherited from his father, and one night a fire broke out and, as he wasn't insured, that was the end of that.

Well, having tried everything else, or pretty nearly so, Bill took it into his head to go in for farming. So he borrowed a little capital here and there and put out a few acres of crops. Potatoes, mostly, and that was the year of the drought, and his tubers grew to about the size of fairish walnuts, and stuck there.

Well, not being entirely ruined, Bill set his land next year to corn. That was the year of the floods and his corn was swamped out and went floating down the valley and lodged in the machinery of the mill just when they were putting through a special rush order of paper. There was a suit, and somebody lost several thousand dollars, but Bill—oh, well, the judge said everybody knew what Bill's luck was, and it was the fault of the paper company for not having moved when Bill took to farming in the neighborhood. So that was where Bill scored.

Well, by this time Bill's patriotism—Is that the word?—was reduced to about five acres; he'd had to sell the rest of the land to keep a roof over his head. What'd you suppose he does? Plants ginseng. They say an acre of it's worth about a million dollars—but why? Because it only grows wild, and no one's ever been able to cultivate it. Bill used to reckon up how many millions he'd have with his five acres of ginseng. He can see him now setting on that cracker-barrel and telling the boys, and the boys winking at each other behind Bill's back. Well, sir, that ginseng came up.

Sure it did! There was five acres of it, thicker than peas, and everybody allowed Bill's luck had turned at last, and he was on the way to being a millionaire. What happened next? Why, one morning Bill noticed some strange bugs on his plants, and the next day they were all stripped and bare, and millions of bugs was walking about looking for a living and not finding one.

Well, Bill was so mad he just set to work and picked every one of them bugs that he could find and made a bonfire of 'em. And just as the smoke was dying away, up comes old Mr. Harding to see him.

"Will you let me look at them bugs, Bill?" he asks. Old Mr. Harding was a member of the Society for Learned Bugs, or something of that sort, and he was kind of interested.

"Take your pick," says Bill, indicating the remnants.

Mr. Harding brings out his microscope and looks at a slaughtered bug that had somehow escaped the holocaust only to die of asphyxiation.

"This bug, Bill," he says, "is Tri-corythodendensis borotaviensis, a very rare bug from China, which must have got shipped in with the original ginseng seeds, and the government at Washington is offering a thousand dollars for the first half-dozen of them brought to this country, to kill the ginseng men."

Bill let out a yell that sent the firemen rushing to quarters, thinking it was the whistle, and he set a raking over the pile till he found a bug that was still faintly breathing. So he took it indoors and him and Mr. Harding nursed it for five days, but then it gave up the ghost.

So then we called him "Hard-Luck Bill," and knew he'd never succeed at nothing. What happened to him? Oh, he's conducting a correspondence school on "How to Succeed in Life." Doing quite well at it, too, they tell me. But after all, it was about the only thing left for him to do.
